BELFAST IN HOME RULE RIOT

POINCARE PRESIDENT OF FRANCE

PARIS, Jan. 17.—Premier Raymond Poincare was this afternoon elected President of France, succeeding Armand Fallieres, whose term expires next month.

M. Poincare was elected by the members of the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate, sitting together as the National Assembly in Versailles Palace, after it seemed that a deadlock was certain on the third ballot.

The next President came into power last year as Premier. He had been twice Minister of Finance and twice Minister of Public Instruction and his election to the presidency today was generally conceded.

On the first ballot, Premier Poincare received 381 votes, the highest number received by any candidate, but as this was short of a majority, another ballot had to be taken.

Jules Pams, Minister of Agriculture, received 328 votes on the first ballot.

On the second ballot M. Poincare again led the field, but did not have sufficient votes to elect.

Duel Challenge by Poincare.

Extraordinary military and police precautions were taken to guard against disorder the result of the election. In addition to the gendarmerie reserves stationed throughout the city and suburbs 6,000 soldiers were held at strategic points to quell disorders. Five thousand of the troops were infantrymen, the balance cavalry.

The first exciting incident of the day occurred when M. Poincare, leading presidential candidate, challenged former Premier Georges Clemenceau to a duel because of insulting remarks alleged to have been made. After sending the challenge, M. Poincare selected Minister of Justice Briand and the Minister of Finance Klotz for his second.

Before the balloting on presidential candidates began, Minister of Colonies Jules Pams, an aspirant to the presidency, sent a note to the Premier, resigning from the Cabinet.

Row Over the Menu.

Great excitement prevailed over threats of the Radical Socialists and the Republican Left, as the Radical Republican party is known, to cause turbulent demonstrations. The Socialists seized every possible pretext for objections and they were particularly bitter in denouncing the luxurious menu for the luncheon to the national assembly.

The menu was as follows:

Hors d'oeuvres franciaises.
Consomme printaniere royale.
Filets de sole Imperatrice.
Poularde du mans.
Haricots Marie Antoinette. Petits pois Trianon
Dessert.

In addition 2,000 bottles of rare vintages and Havana cigars costing two francs apiece were provided.

A Versatile Man.

Poincare is one of the most distinguished and perhaps the most versatile figure in French public life, being a lawyer, philosopher, artist, writer of parliamentarian, and a member of the French Academy.

He is now fifty-two years of age, and received his first appointment as a minister when he was thirty-three. He served several times in various cabinets, and twice declined the Premiership.

The special characteristic of M. Poincare is said to be rigid integrity. When he was received into the Academy he was hailed as a fearless exponent of truth. The newspapers welcome him as admirably fitted to direct the government in the crisis just past.

The war very active in condemning the conspirators who sent Deroulede to Devil's Island.

ROUNDS PLEA GUILTY, GIVEN THREE YEARS

George H. Rounds, the former cashier at the Parker House, pleaded guilty today in the Superior Court to the larceny of $27,865.39 from the Parker House and was sentenced to serve from three to four years in State prison.

Rounds was indicted by the Grand Jury on Saturday. He was indicted for larceny and forgery. Rounds is a Harvard man and came from northern New York. It was reported that Rounds stole the money to indulge his taste for rare books —not of the "de luxe" style, however.

Rounds, who was arrested at the Parker House on December 7, last, was a man of mystery for days to the police. There were many points about his career which even his confession of the thefts of thousands of dollars from his employers by juggling his accounts did not clear up. Later the police learned that Rounds was a student, a Master of Arts, a Phi Beta Kappa man, and a member of the Theta Delta Chi fraternity. It also came out that the cause of his flefts was his passion for rare and valuable books and for stock market gambling.

He was graduated from the University of Rochester at Rochester, N. Y., in 1904. For more than five years he was the head bookkeeper at the Parker House.

INAUGURAL BALL IS GIVEN UP

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Yielding to the wishes of President-elect Wilson, William C. Eustis, chairman of the inaugural committee, today announced that the inaugural ball, long a feature of Washington society, had been called off. Mr. Wilson objected because of the enormous expense of the balls, believing that over $60,000 will be saved by the cancellation of the affair.

"There will be no inaugural ball," said Mr. Eustis after conferring with members of the committee. "We shall defer to the wishes of the President-elect. The committee will act officially as a body later." It is believed that the Wilson administration will be characterized by a lot of social accessories.

Business men, officials and society were all up in the air here today as a result of President-elect Wilson's announcement that he would like the inaugural ball left out of the inauguration ceremonies. The business men are out of pocket about $87,000, part of which they expected to have refunded to them through the sale of inaugural ball tickets. Officials are opposed to changing a custom which has prevailed since Madison's time, and society is angry because it will not get a chance to see and be seen at the big social event of March 4 if Wilson sticks to his present determination.

William Corcoran Eustis, chairman of the inaugural committee, today called a meeting of his aides to consider the situation.

BROCKTON MAN TAKES OWN LIFE IN BOSTON HOTEL

Carl Johansen or Johnson of Brockton was found dead by his own hand in a room at the St. Cloud Hotel, No. 567 Tremont street, today, with a note on the bureau containing $153 of which the police were directed to give "100 kroner to my Kirsela."

This was an instruction for the authorities to give about $27.50 to the suicide's sweetheart. Inquiries in Brockton for the girl were not immediately successful.

Johansen had killed himself with one revolver shot through the right temple.

The time of suicide was set at 7 a. m. by the hotel people and police because William Brown, occupying a room near Johansen's, heard a report at that hour. Brown thought it was an automobile tire exploding in the street. The suicide was discovered by a chambermaid.

The Boston police thought ill health was the cause of suicide, but Brockton police recall Johansen was fined two weeks ago after being caught in a gambling raid, and think worry over this may have made the man despondent.

Johansen came to Brockton a year ago from Sweden and worked as shoe operative for the George E. Keith Company. He lodged at No. 47 Denton street. He was thirty years old.

GIVE UP ELDORADO AND HER CREW OF 41

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 17.—Confirmation of the loss at sea of the Southern Pacific freighter Eldorado, with her crew of forty-one, was obtained today by company officials. The Eldorado, bound from Galveston to New York, encountered the great storms which raged off the Atlantic coast for three days. Memorial services for the crew were held here Sunday.

GEORGE ADE AGAIN A COLLEGE STUDENT

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Jan. 17.—George Ade is for the second time in his career a full-fledged student at Purdue University. Mr Ade, playwright and humorist, is enrolled in the agricultural short course here and is attending lectures on corn and stock raising. Ade's country place, Hazelden, is run in conjunction with one of his large farms near Brook, Ind., and the humorist plans to give serious attention to agriculture.

Indict New Haven in Elm Farm Milk Carrying Charges

The Federal Grand Jury today returned two indictments against the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company for granting concessions to the Elm Farm Milk Company of this city in violation of the act of Congress of February 4, 1887. United States District Attorney French asked Judge Morton that capiases be issued at once against the individuals.

It is charged the railroad used cans of greater capacity than the interstate commerce act allows in transporting milk to the Elm Farm Company.

Two years ago the Elm Farm company pleaded guilty to accepting the concessions and paid a fine of $5,000 and costs. At that time the indictments against the railroad were not pressed, as the government wanted time to investigate further. The indictments today are the result.

STEAMSHIPS NEAR COLLISION AT SEA IN GALE AND SNOW

Captain Collins of the steamer Gallia, which arrived from Hull, England, two days overdue, tells of a thrilling escape from collision with the French liner Mexico bound for New York. The two steamers had been in wireless communication all the way across, and on January 10, when off the Nova Scotia coast in a blizzard, Captain Collins received a wireless saying:

"I am not under control and am drifting down upon you. Mexico."

At that time Captain Collins did not have control of his own ship, and could not see his bow from the bridge through the snow. Both steamers worked clear in a distance of less than a quarter of a mile.

FIGHT TO SAVE 50 ON BOARD VERONESE

OPORTO, Portugal, Jan. 17.—Battered for more than thirty hours by a severe Atlantic gale, the transport and mail liner Veronese, which was driven ashore on the Portuguese Coast, was slowly going to pieces today while life savers, exhausted by their strenuous struggle, fought desperately to save the fifty passengers remaining on the ship.

Eighty-nine of the 139 passengers on the Veronese had been taken off up to noon, fourteen more having been rescued by lifesavers today. Most of the passengers were immigrants bound for Brazilian and Argentinne ports.

TRUNK VICTIM BURIED

AMESBURY, Jan. 17.—Shortly after the funeral of Mrs. Charles Victorine, the trunk mystery victim, today, the State police began an investigation into the death of the woman, whose stomach is now being examined by Professor Whitney, the poison expert at Harvard. State Detective Arthur G. Wells arrived from Gloucester this afternoon and took charge of the inquiry.

The woman's husband, at the foot of whose bed her body was found in a trunk, was questioned for an hour. He had attended his wife's funeral, with a number of her relatives from New Hampshire. Services was held at the Sacred Heart Catholic Church. About seventy-five persons were present. Burial was in St. Joseph's Cemetery.

Stories of Quarrels.

The State police are not satisfied with several aspects of the case. They say they have learned that there were many quarrels of quarreling in the Victorines' apartment. This last an aspect to the case that they consider needs a thorough investigation. When there is a second mysterious phase.

The body was found in a trunk with a broken lock. Victorine, it is understood, was subjected to a sharp questioning by the State officer as to how long this lock had been broken. While the Amesbury police, when they found the trunk unlocked and the lock broken, pronounced it a case of suicide, largely from this case, the State officer is no so sure.

The officers, it is understood, will endeavor to round up witnesses who have seen the trunk, and question them upon whether the trunk lock was broken when they last saw it or not.

Says Wife Was Drinking.

Victorine's story was that his wife had been drinking. He said she had a peculiar mania that led her to hide from him. Once before she had hid in a trunk, he told the police, and he had looked there and found her. The body lay in the trunk for nearly two days this time before he looked there, and then he explained that he looked merely to see if she had left any of her clothes there.

This is a peculiar phase of the case that the State police are going into carefully. It is understood that they grilled the husband thoroughly on this point.

Medical Examiner Murphy stated that the woman was addicted to drink and that when intoxicated was in the habit of concealing herself from her husband. Once, it is said, she took down a metal front of an old fireplace and hid herself in the chimney.

MRS. BRITTON'S SECRETARY KILLED

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 17.—Russell Davis, the young secretary of Mrs. Helene Hathaway Britton, owner of the St. Louis National League baseball team, and William Waiters, president of an automobile company here, were killed in an automobile accident early today.

The men were driving fifty-five miles an hour down Grade avenue. Near Sportsman's Park, the machine skidded on the wet pavement and ran into a fire plug. The car was smashed into bits and the crushed bodies of the two men were immediately deluged in a lake formed by the water rushing from the fire plug. A fire company was called out to recover the bodies.

Charles Sumner's Divorced Wife Is Dead in London

LONDON, Jan. 17.—Mrs. Alice Mason of Boston, the divorced wife of the late Senator Charles Sumner of Massachusetts, died Wednesday from jaundice at her London home. Her daughter, Isabella, is the wife of Edward Balfour of London and Scotland.

The body is to be taken to Scotland for burial.

In September, 1866, three months after the death of his mother, Sumner became engaged to Mrs. Alice Mason Hooper, a young widow. She was the niece of Jeremiah Mason, one of the leaders of the bar, who was a rival of Daniel Webster. Sumner was fifty-five years old and his bride but twenty-eight. She was attractive, highbred in manner and fascinating in society at Washington, where he had met her.

They were married October 17, 1866, and took a house in Washington. The disparity in their ages, however, was a bar to happiness, and the cozy fireside that Sumner had pictured for his declining years vanished. They were not happy together and after eight months she left him. Some years later Sumner procured a divorce.

Sumner died March 11, 1874.

TWO ARE SENTENCED IN NASHUA CRUSADE

MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 17.—Paternan Frank A. Mansur, the Nashua police man indicted on two counts for bribery as a result of the vice crusade in that city, was today sentenced to three months in jail and to pay a fine of $50 and costs. The jail sentence was suspended. Eva V. Oliver of the St. James Hotel, indicted for keeping a disorderly house, was sentenced to six months in jail and to pay a fine of $200. The fine was suspended. Emma Jarvis, also indicted on the charge of conducting a disorderly place, was arraigned and her case continued for sentence.

PUJO TESTIFIES TO HENRY GRAND JURY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Chairman Pujo of the House Money Trust Committee today appeared before the Grand Jury of the District of Columbia and gave testimony on which United States District Attorney Wilson expects an indictment against George G. USE GUNS IN ULSTER PROTEST

BELFAST, Ireland, Jan. 17.—Five persons were hurt here today in an anti-home rule demonstration precipitated by the passage of the Home Rule bill in the House of Commons last night. One man is reported to be in a dying condition, having been shot in the back.

Rioting was almost continuous today. Great crowds paraded the streets firing blank cartridges and crying "We won't have home rule."

The demonstration reached its climax when the Union Jack was publicly burned in the streets.

CHURCH LEADERS REJOICE AT GOOD NEWS FOR IRELAND

Friends of Ireland in this country rejoiced today at the prospects of home rule for Ireland. Some of the comments by prominent church officials follow:

CARDINAL O'CONNELL:

Not only will all Irishmen rejoice, but every upright man who loves truth and justice will be glad, because of this action and that justice has been granted.

Our first act is one of thanksgiving to God for this good news, but at the same time we must not forget our sense of gratitude to those valiant Irish leaders in the English Parliament who have fought so nobly and so untiringly.

Cardinal O'Connell paid tribute to the faithful sons and daughters of Ireland for their steady and unflinching support of the Irish leaders in Parliament who, he observed, "have contributed generously out of their hard-earned wages to help on this triumph of justice and of right.

CARDINAL GIBBONS, at Baltimore:

"O, I am exceedingly glad and I expected it. The passage of the bill reflects great credit on the Irish members of Parliament and on the Irish people as a whole. Also on those Englishmen who favored and fought for the bill. What will be the effect? Why, it will make the Irish love their country even more than they do now. It will make Ireland a brighter and a better land. I am indeed glad."

MGR. DENIS O'CALLAGHAN, rector of St. Augustine's Church, South Boston:

"Gloria in Excelsis Deo" for the favors vouchsafed Ireland.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Colonel George W. Goethals, chief engineer and administrator of the Panama canal, it is reported, was today offered the post of Secretary of War by President-elect Wilson.

SERIOUS LABOR WAR IS FEARED IN HAVERHILL

HAVERHILL, Jan. 17.—Orders from Chief of Police Mack for the strictest enforcement of the ordinances against street parades, public assemblies, shouting, singing and frequenting public places, except by official permit, today called attention to the fact that while every effort is being made to minimize the seriousness of the local labor situation, Haverhill is apparently at the door of a conflict as serious as the great Lawrence strike of a year ago.

Further evidence accumulated today when Charles A. Eaton was arraigned in court charged with assault with intent to kill. Eaton was held in $3,000 bonds. Bail was furnished by George W. Dobbins of Witherell & Dobbins, his employers.

Eaton's alleged victim, Joseph Harris of Bradford, is in the Hale Hospital. A 38-calibre bullet was today extracted from his body. It had penetrated the liver and lodged against the wall of the chest. The surgeons say he is in condition is as good as could be expected.

Assault charges have been made daily for the past two weeks by both sides in the conflict between the cutters and employers. Eaton is the most serious offence charged by the strikers against the other side.

On the other hand, Arthur Smith and Byron Jones, the latter of Lynn, were today adjudged guilty of "intimidation."

Peter Lindenhover, employed for twenty years at the Gale shoe factory, and who remained at work when other cutters went on strike, was beaten up last night on his way home. It is alleged that several hours before, at the noon recess, Smith and Byron Jones had intimidated a lad.

As Smith is a governmental witness against Eaton in the assault case, his case was continued for sentence. Disposition of the case against Jones was continued as a consequence.

FIND ARSENIC IN BODIES OF WELLS BABIES

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Jan. 17.—Enough arsenic was found in the stomachs of little Marie and Lewis Wells, children of Mrs. Anna May Wells, to kill several mature persons, according to a report from the State laboratory at Burlington today. At the same time it was hinted that another arrest may be made.

This startling suggestion came from a State officer, who said there was reason to believe a Swanton man may know more about the alleged poisoning of the Wells children than the mother, who is held and accused of double infanticide. This unexpected development adds a new mystery to the tragedy.

Prosecuting Attorney Gaylord F. Ladd of Richford received the report of the chemists at Burlington, and immediately busied himself with the preparation of the case while awaiting the official report. It had been supposed that very little arsenic would be discovered, and the finding of the State laboratory astonished the officials here.

As a result of the new facts, a special Grand Jury may be convened, but it is more likely that Mrs. Wells may be held for the regular March session. This Grand Jury comes in the second Tuesday in March.

Attorney-General Rufus E. Brown of Burlington and State's Attorney Ladd have left St. Albans after gathering considerable evidence. They hinted to close friends that startling developments might be reported.

Stephen Cushing, attorney for Mrs. Wells, was expected to return from Montpelier today. He has said he would fight for an early hearing. He would not say why he went to Montpelier, but it was believed he expected to confer with the attorney-general.

In jail, Mrs. Wells' only comfort is the company of her little daughter, Rosamond, whom she calls Rosebud. She visited her mother early this morning and said she would stay all day.

A Boston friend of Mrs. Wells bought her a box of chocolates today, the first candy the woman has received while in Jail. Rosamond received thirteen pennies and was a happy little girl.

Mrs. Wells suffers much from headaches and her face grows crimson during the attacks. She attributes them to worry over her home and the children whom she can not see.

Will Boston Girls Let England Make That Venus Boast?

Well, what do you know about that? Here's a British newspaper which says it can show dozens of British rivals of the Venus de Milo who can outdo Miss Scheel of Brooklyn, the Cornell student who, the AMERICAN in an article printed recently, showed on the word of the Cornell experts, had most of the proportions of the armless beauty.

Now, can't you show those overseas women that Boston has its own galaxy of Venus de Milo beauties? The AMERICAN invites you to write a description of your measurements and mail it with your picture to the AMERICAN, No. 80 Summer street. There must be many Venuses in Boston. Don't be bashful! Remember how sure the British are that the Venuses today are all in the tight little isle.

The most conspicuous of these British beauties is a girl who stipulates that her identity shall not be disclosed, but is described as "well known in the social world and belonging to one of the best known families in Scotland."

Her height, head, neck, bust, waist, arms, hips and thighs are said to be identical with the measurements of the Venus de Milo. The other measurements are only fractionally different.

Dancing Master Says: Dance Turkey Trot If You Think Right

If you dance the turkey trot improperly, it is your fault, not that of the dance. It is because you, and not the trot, are improper. If you live right and think right, you will dance right, declares Alfonso J. Sheafe, the Boston dancing master.

Professor Sheafe gave a demonstration of dances of different periods at the Dorchester Club, under the auspices of the Municipal Athletic Association. Speaking of modern dances, he said:

"The turkey trot, the aeroplane slide and other present-day dances may be properly danced. If a dancer lives right and thinks right, he will dance right, and if he does not live right and think right he is more apt to dance wrong. Herein is the glut of the present-day agitation concerning the modern social dance. I agree with Mrs. Storrow and with several others who knew what they are talking about that the turkey trot and these other dances of the same kind may be properly danced."

FALSE TEETH FIT? THE JURY CANNOT SAY

After just twenty-three hours of argument over the set of hand-carved false teeth which Dr. Adelbert Fernald, dentist, made for Dr. Mary Elizabeth Bates, a jury in the Suffolk Superior Civil Court was unable to agree and so reported today to Judge Bell in the seventh session.

The jury retired at eleven o'clock yesterday, with the "impression," the model and the finished set of false teeth, to consider whether Dr. Bates should pay any or all of the balance of $190 on Dr. Fernald's bill, for which Dr. Fernald had brought suit.

The jury argued it all day and all night, and gave it up at ten a. m., when Judge Bell thanked them for their efforts and let them go.

Dr. Fernald maintained that the teeth be made for Dr. Bates are all right.

But Dr. Bates, in the course of much interesting testimony, has told Dr. Fernald they looked "like horses' teeth."

Dr. Bates also declared the upper and lower set did not "occlude." She informed the court and jurymen that "occlusion" is one of the most important things in dentistry.

Jury Had "Impression."

Dr. Fernald has dental offices at No. 420 Boylston street. Dr. Bates lives in the Hotel Wadsworth in the Back Bay. The plaintiff charged that the original price agreed upon for the teeth was $240, that Dr. Bates paid $50 and that $190 was due. Hence the suit.

The exhibits in the case were the "impression," the model and the completed set of teeth, which Dr. Bates described as more like the equine than the human in articles.

In her story to the court Dr. Bates said in part:

I told Dr. Fernald I had studied dentistry and knew something about it. I said it was my misfortune to be obliged to wear false teeth. I told him I was very particular about them.

I wanted Dr. Fernald to match a lower set of false teeth I wore and he took an impression of my mouth. He said he would have to make the lower set over to conform to the upper set. I didn't want this done because the lower set suited me, but I consented to let him make them over.

"Were Carved Over."

I tried the new upper teeth in his office. In the first place, the new set looked harmony of color, and it's a hard thing to get color. But I put the teeth in my mouth and went to a looking glass. After a minute I said: "Why, they look like horse's teeth."

Dr. Fernald answered that they would grow more yellow with age. But the set of false teeth would not stay in my mouth. They didn't occlude, and occlusion is one of the most important things in dentistry.

CANDIDATES, TELL CONTEST RULES TO ALL

By THE CONTEST EDITOR.

Candidates in the AMERICAN'S $40,000 contest whose subscribers are having any delay or difficulty in getting their papers delivered promptly and properly will do well to furnish the Contest Editor, without delay, with the names and address in any such cases.

It is most important that every candidate when taking subscriptions explain in detail the subscription plan. Frequently subscribers imagine that the guarantee money which is later paid applies on the start of the subscription. This is not the case, as every candidate knows, and it will avoid unnecessary trouble and annoyance by clearly explaining in each case just what the guarantee applies and how.

When subscriptions are received by the Contest Department a special order is sent to the newsdealer or newsboy in whose territory subscriber lives, instructing the dealer to begin immediate delivery of the Sunday AMERICAN for the term agreed upon and to collect every week from subscriber at the regular Sunday paper rate.

After allowing sufficient time for the order to reach the newsdealer and for him to make his first delivery the Contest Department sends direct to every subscriber a return post card. This card acknowledges receipt of the subscription and requests the subscriber to notify the Contest Department on return card whether delivery of the Sunday AMERICAN is being properly made.

Candidates should instruct their subscribers to use this return postcard at any time delivery of the paper may be irregular or unsatisfactory.

It is absolutely essential that candidates impress upon their subscribers that "refusal to take," "don't want," etc., means one thing only—that the candidate will lose the vote credit given on account of the subscription.

Six weeks from today this tremendous competition will come to a close. The final winners of the fifteen hundred and one big prizes will be the ones who make every hour of every day for the next six weeks count big in subscription results.

A new vote list will appear in next Sunday's AMERICAN, January 19. This list will be compiled up to Saturday, January 11.

ALL STEEL CARS FOR MERCHANTS' LIMITED

A string of all-steel cars for the "Merchants' Limited" is ordered by the New Haven road from the Pullman Palace Car Company within a week. The order given was simply: "Make it the finest train in the world." So these new cars are expected to be the last word in palace car construction.

FORM A TRUST TO MAKE TIN CANS

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 17.—Articles of incorporation were filed with the Secretary of State today by the Continental Can Company, incorporated, with a capital of $17,500,000, to manufacture tin pails and other receptacles. The company has taken over the business of the Continental Can Company of New Jersey and the Export and Domestic Can Company of New York.

START RAZING OF HARVARD GORE HALL

Harvard has seen the last of Gore Hall, the old library. The contract for tearing it down has been awarded to Elston & Jones of Boston, and the razing of the historic building has begun. Gore Hall has been the library since 1843. One of the new Freshman dormitories is to be named Gore Hall.

LYNN MAN ADVOCATES CIVIL SERVICE COURT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The creation of a new court to deal exclusively with the complaints and petitions of civil employes of the government is suggested to Congress by the National League of Government Employes, which closes its annual convention here today. In advocating the addition of a special tribunal George I. Cain of Lynn, Mass., president of the league, insisted that some such arbiter is necessary.

"The Precious Lives of Little Children"

Are often sacrificed through carelessness. Children should be taught at an early age to rinse the mouth thoroughly morning and night with "ODOL." The germ of Diphtheria is ever a deadly menace to the lives of children. It enters through the mouth. The constant use of "ODOL" as a mouth-wash is the SAFEGUARD that renders a child practically immune from attack. Pleasant to the taste and delightfully refreshing. "ODOL" will also harden the gums and keep the teeth in a healthy condition. There is nothing "Just as Good" as "ODOL."

WOMAN AND HER CHILDREN ARE EVICTED

Residents of Appleton street today discussed the most remarkable and most pitiful eviction case that ever took place in that section of the city. Three small children, including a baby with no clothing on except a tiny nightdress, were thrust out of a lodging house on Appleton street into the arms of their mother, who had been shut out when she went to the street corner to get some milk for the little ones.

The victim was Mrs. Hayes, whose husband is a book agent. They came to Boston three weeks ago from New York, and they got behind in their rent. Hayes went out of the city to try to collect some money that was due him, and when he returned home he found his little family in the police station in tears.

Policeman Cadigan pleaded with the landlady to take the mother and children back in the house for a time, but she was obdurate.

"I am running this place," replied the landlady, "and you have no right to interfere. I have my own rent to pay."

What would have happened to the women and children if Harry Blanchard of No. 110 Appleton street had not happened along, no one knows. He found the mother, a slender woman of girlish appearance, sitting on the steps of the house from which she had been shut out, moaning. She held her baby, which was barefooted, in her arms. Two little girls, five and seven years old, were at her side.

"Give me the baby's clothing," Mrs. Hayes pleaded. "The child will receive its death from cold."

A second-story window was opened. The baby's clothing was dropped to the street.

"I want my baby carriage," cried Mrs. Hayes.

After some wait the carriage was hooked out of the door.

In the meantime a crowd had collected and they were vigorously protesting against the treatment the mother and children were receiving.

"It's a shame—I wouldn't treat a dog in that way," declared a man in the crowd.

"Here," said Blanchard, "let's give the woman some money. I'll start the collection with fifty cents."

Others chipped in. Three policemen who arrived on the scene, helping the thing along until $6 was made up.

The husband appeared shortly after Mrs. Hayes and the children had been taken to the station house. He took his little family away, slinging out the back way. Blanchard found the little family trudging through the street looking for a new home and gave them the money that had been collected for them.

GUARD MISS SPRAGUE AND BRANDIGEES FROM BLACK HAND MENACE

As a result of the attempted blackmail of Edward D. Brandegee, the wealthy Brookline man whose life and that of his heiress stepdaughter, Miss Margaret Sprague, was threatened in letter demanding $2,000 as the price of security, a heavy guard is being maintained about Faulkner Farm, the beautiful Brandegee estate and Miss Sprague is under constant escort wherever she goes.

Every stranger at all suspicious looking who appears at Faulkner Farm is interrogated before being admitted.

The police are asking to learn the whereabouts of a former Brandegee stable employe whose name they are keeping secret but who is described as being five feet eight, with thin face, sallow complexion, small, piercing blue eyes and dark hair. He wore a black derby hat, black clothing and black shoes. The boys who acted as messengers for the blackmailer on Monday and Wednesday evenings have not yet been found.

Mr. Brandegee declares that he believes the writer of the letters was a prominent Brookline young man whose mind is deranged and who has sent similar letters, it is said, to other wealthy Brookline men.

The former Brandegee employe sought by the police answers the description of the man who had a running pistol battle with the police Wednesday night. He was a seen on Washington street Tuesday night.

The man is a Brookline resident, and would know the district where the pistol battle took place in its most minute details.

Mr. Brandegee was asked to consent to the publication of the several Black Hand letters, but declined to do so. He said that it was his desire to have the case handled without his family receiving any more notoriety than necessary.

The scene of the shooting at Washington street and Pond avenue has been visited by thousands of people, drawn there by curiosity. An inspection of the fences and buildings resulted in the discovery of two large bullet holes in the woodwork near the door at No. 70 Pond street. The bullets were from the guns of the pursuing police.

The police are taking a great deal of interest in the hunt for the boy who secured the supposed money package at the express office. The boy signed a name which, it is believed, is his own and the police are making an effort to locate a boy of the name in Brookline, Roxbury and Jamaica Plain. They decline to make the name public.

Keep No Dog, Nor Yet a Cat, to Be Hygienic Dwelling in a Flat

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—If you live in a flat you'll find it highly unsyzenic to keep roosters there. The Academy of Medicine, in a list of rules just issued, said so. The same rules also announced that if you want to be healthy you should at once rid your flat of these things:

The family dog.
The family cat.
All but the very newest pictures and frames.
All portieres, curtains, bric-a-brac, upholstered furniture and carpets.

If you aim at perfect health you should never:

Shake your duster out the window.
Sweep with a broom.
Beat your rugs on the roof.
Keep your food in the cellar.

BIG TIM SULLIVAN IN HIS DELUSIONS FEARS DICTAGRAPH

ALBANY, Jan. 17.—The principal delusion of "Big Tim" Sullivan, the Tammany leader, is that he is continually surrounded by dictagraphs, according to a report filed with the State Hospital Commission by Drs. John E. Herrity and William B. Pritchard of New York, upon whose certificate Sullivan was committed to Dr. Bond's sanitarium at Yonkers.

"Big Tim," the physicians say, insisted that conversations be carried on in whispers, foreboding exposures that might result from the "room being full of dictagraphs and telephones." He feared also that he and his relatives were being "dosed," and that poison was being put in his food and drink.

WILLING TO FACE COURT IN VIRGINIA

Charles L. Hanford, arrested at the Fore River Shipbuilding Works as a fugitive from justice, was arraigned in the Quincy District Court today. He waived extradition, declaring his willingness to face the charges of forgery which the police of Richmond, Va., make. Hanford is accused of having forged two checks on the Planters' Bank of Richmond. He denies he is guilty.

INVESTIGATE THE SUDDEN ILLNESS OF SOUTH END GIRL

The police resumed today their investigation in the case of a South End girl upon whom Dr. Francis M. Reid of No. 205 Huntington avenue is accused of having performed an illegal operation. Dr. Reid was arraigned and was held in $50,000, pending outcome of the girl's condition. The girl is in the Homeopathic Hospital and is said to be recovering.

BANK WRECKER COLEMAN GOES OVER ACCOUNTS

George W. Coleman, the twelve-dollar-a-week clerk who wrecked the National City Bank of Cambridge and spent upwards of $300,000 he stole, put in several hours today going over the tangled books of the defunct bank with Former Governor John L. Bates, receiver of the bank, and a number of clerks and special accountants.

Coleman was brought to Boston yesterday from the Greenfield jail, where he is serving a fifteen year sentence at hard labor.

Coleman apparently hugely enjoyed his day today, especially his dinner. His mother brought him a whole travelling bag full of jam and cookies and other home delicacies. She did not see her son, but will be permitted to visit him tonight at the East Cambridge Jail.

Mrs. Coleman was seen by an AMERICAN reporter in the office of the United States marshal in the Federal building.

"Are you looking for George?" she was asked.

"Yes, I am," she replied.

"Do you know where he is?" was asked.

"Not now, but I shall see him tonight," said the mother. She went on to explain that she had in her stockwork traveling bag something which "George liked to eat at home."

"It's jam and cookies," she explained.

Coleman is in the custody of a United States deputy marshal. Coleman has pended Receiver Bates to help him all he can in his efforts to straighten out the affairs of the defunct bank.

Monday, Coleman will be a witness in the suit brought by the receiver against the officials of the bank to compel them to make good their employe's thefts. The lawyers in the case said today that they were keeping Coleman's whereabouts a secret to keep him from being annoyed.

Mrs. Slater Secure From Divorce; She Is Without a Home

PARIS, Jan. 17.—Samuel Slater's latest endeavors to obtain a divorce from his wife has failed like the others, because his wife is "without a home."

For several years Mr. Slater has been striving in three different cities—Boston, Nice and Paris—to free himself, but without success. The roving disposition of Mrs. Slater has caused Mr. Slater to establish homes for her all over Europe, and these various homes have stood her well in fighting her husband's divorce actions, as on each occasion when suit is brought she has readily proved herself a resident of somewhere else.

Mr. Slater took houses in London, Berlin and Nice in deference to his wife's wishes, but soon found himself a man with many homes but no wife. Finally, seeing that she frequented Paris, Mr. Slater took an apartment here to establish a residence, but the wife's lawyer convinced the court Mrs. Slater did not live there.

PROVIDENCE PUBLIC MARKET IS NEARER

GARMENT UNION ASKS APPROVAL OF STRIKE PLAN

The Ladies' Garment Workers' Council today forwarded to the officers of its general union at New York for approval the demands to be presented local employers, preparatory to calling a general strike of the 12,000 men, women and children employed at that industry in this city.

A fifty-hour week, the elimination of alleged unsanitary conditions and child labor abuses, and a more uniform wage schedule are called for in this list. It will be mailed to the local manufacturers from New York when ratified by the general union. Following that action, a general strike will be called at every Boston shop refusing to comply with the demands.

Local labor leaders in close touch with the situation here today asserted that immediately the strike contemplated by the Ladies' Garment Workers' Union takes place, the United Garment Workers probably will call out at least 20,000 other operatives in this city.

These operatives work only on men's garments and have a separate union, but both organizations belong to the American Federation of Labor. This would tie up the entire industry in Boston, and throw 32,000 out of employment.

SAYS HOSPITALS BAR HUB WOMEN

"Boston women may work in the outpatient department hospital, but they receive no credit for what they do there, and no official recognition is made of their services," declared Dr. Evangeline Young in proving that the woman physician has little show of getting ahead in the local hospitals.

MAN AND BOY HURT BY FALLING FROM RAILROAD BRIDGE

A man and a boy fell thirty feet from a railroad bridge at Hyde Park within a few hours today, and each was severely injured. The man is James B. Watson, of No. 11 Oakland street, Mattapan. He was walking along the tracks of the Midland Division of the New Haven railroad, which crosses the Providence Division by an overhead bridge, when he slipped between the ties. He was taken to the Hyde Park Hospital in an unconscious condition. The boy is Charles Campbell, fourteen years old, of No. 12 Stevens street, Ipsn. He ran away from home. One shoulder is dislocated and he has a sprained ankle. He also is in the Hyde Park Hospital.

"CASCARETS" BEST FOR THE BOWELS

Cascaret users never have Headache, Constipation, Biliousness or Sick Stomach.

It is more necessary that you keep your Bowels, Liver and Stomach clean, pure and fresh than it is to keep the sewers and drainage of a large city free from obstruction.

Are you keeping your insides with Cascarets—or merely forcing a passageway every few days with salts, cathartic pills or castor oil? This is important.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system the constipated waste matter and poison in the intestines and bowels.

No odds how badly and upset you feel, a Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep. A ten-cent box from your druggist will keep your head clear, stomach sweet and your liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

POWERS AGAIN URGE TURKEY TO MAKE PEACE

CONSTANTINOPLE, Jan. 17. — The Powers acted in concert today in bringing about a treaty of peace between Turkey and the Balkan allies. The collective note, formulated by the ambassadors here, was presented to the Porte, urging that the Turkish government make such concessions as would enable the envoys to get together again on a common ground.

War or peace will result from Turkey's reply.

Sudden Activity in London.

LONDON, Jan. 17.—After having been postponed until next Wednesday, the ambassadorial high court, composed of diplomatic envoys of the Powers, and formed to settle European disputes arising from the Balkan war, was suddenly and unexpectedly convened today. This was followed by reports that definite action was about to be taken in the Turko-Balkan affairs.

Devilfish Stew Killed Appetites at Paris Banquet

PARIS, Jan. 17.—The annual luncheon of the Zoological Society of France, which was held in the buffet of the Gare de Lyon, is always an event in Paris, and considerable curiosity is manifested as to its culinary novelties.

The dish which was most enjoyed today was one, which was served with cranberries and tasted like hare or venison. Another strange course was stewed devilfish. The gourmets liked it, but when some one thoughtlessly passed around a bottle containing a small octopus to show what it was like, the guests put down their knives and forks and requested the waiters to take away their plates.

Pickled eggs which had been kept six and one-half months were eaten with some hesitation, but proved to be excellent, and fruits preserved in mustard were voted quite good.

STUDENTS PROTEST HIGH R. R. RATES

In protest against the raising of the railroad rates for students' tickets, a committee has been appointed representing Harvard, Tech, the State normal schools, parochial schools, private commercial schools and other institutions to secure legislation to remedy the situation. A State-wide agitation is to be started, with a view to creating public sentiment and to taking the ticket grievance before the legislative authorities.

DAKOTA DAN IS JAMES RUSAW, SAYS WOMAN

A sensation was sprung today in the Russell will case before Master Pevey in the East Cambridge court when Lawyer Robert Nason quietly called Mrs. Mary Rusaw to the witness stand in an effort to prove that the claimant to half the Russell property is James Rusaw and not Daniel Blake Russell.

Mrs. Rusaw identified "Dakota Dan" positively and in a most dramatic manner as "Jim "Rusaw, a brother of her husband, William. Mrs. Rusaw told the court how to spell her name which has been incorrectly spelled ever since the remarkable will fight began three years ago.

"It is spelled R-u-s-a-w," said the witness.

Mrs. Rusaw is middle aged, as dark almost as an Indian with black flashing eyes. Mr. Nason, who is acting for the Russell estate, handled the witness a photograph. It is exhibit 13 in the old trial.

Exhibit 13 on Friday.

"Exhibit 13 and this is Friday," warned William R. Scharton, counsel for Dakota Dan. "You better be on your guard."

"Oh, it worked pretty well at the last trial," retorted Nason.

The photograph is of a man with a mustache, and on the back of the picture is written: "This is for William."

"Where did you see that picture before?" asked Nason.

"I first saw it in our house. (She said she lived at Brasher, N. Y.). It came through the mail."

"Who is it?"

"It is a likeness of my husband's brother James."

"Do you see that gentleman sitting over there—the claimant?" asked Nelson, indicating "Dakota Dan."

"I do."

"Who is he?"

"He is Jim Rusaw."

"Look him squarely in the eye," interjected Scharton. "Don't look at me."

Nason requested "Dakota Dan" to stand. He did so. He was only a few feet from the woman. She looked him over from head to foot carefully, finally gazing at him for several seconds straight in the eye.

"Is that Jim Rusaw?" Nason asked.

"It is," she replied decisively.

The Dakotan looked the woman in the eye with 4 glare on his face. But she did not flinch.

"How long have you known this man?"

"Twenty-three years. I knew him before I married his brother. He is Jim Rusaw. I never knew him by any other name."

Hunt for Pen Stock.

At the last trial Sarah Rusaw swore that "Dakota Dan" was her son James. She died since the other trial. It is believed that other members of the Rusaw family are in or near Boston and that they will be called as witnesses.

Before Mrs. Rusaw was called Charles E. Comer of Comer's Commercial College, which Daniel Blake Russell attended, was on the stand. It developed that a pen stock introduced at the last trial by the claimant as the one he used at the commercial college was missing. A persistent search through the exhibits, participated in by about all of those connected with the case, failed to turn up the lost exhibit.

"Is Dakota Dan the pupil who attended your school as Daniel Blake Russell?" Professor Comer was asked.

"No."

Comer said that John Jones, at one time connected with the Russell Fertilizer Company, attended his school. Jones testified in behalf of "Dakota Dan." Nason intimated his belief that the Dakotan learned what he knew about the commercial school from Jones.

IVERNIA HAS FIRST PLEASANT WEATHER

A wireless dispatch from the Cunard liner Ivernia, due here early yesterday, stated the steamship is expected in dock in Boston Monday with 600 passengers. The dispatch said the ship had encountered the first pleasant weather on its trip. At the time the message was sent the liner was 1,014 miles east of Boston light.

RIOTS BEGUN AGAINST IRISH HOME RULE BILL

series of trials and troubles has come at last, and throughout the length and breadth of the land the Irish people cheerful have but one word to express their joy and happiness in this hour of victory, "Gloria in Excelsis Deo."

ST. LEGER LEADS FIGHT FOR BILL IN HOUSE OF LORDS

By C. O'CONNELL GALVIN.

Upon the shoulders of Lord St. Leger now rests the burden of continuing the great legislative battle for home rule in Ireland. To him has been assigned by Premier Asquith the duty of leading the battle in the House of Lords.

It is a tremendous task, for the Tory landlord element is enormously in the majority.

Lord St. Leger will be surrounded by able colleagues. He will have Viscount Morley, to aid and inspire him. Morley was Gladstone's great colleague in the home rule fight of 1886. Though his brilliant intellect is as strong as ever, his voice and his general physique have weakened in the years, and so it was found necessary to throw the actual burden upon the shoulders of a younger man, hence the choice of Lord St. Leger.

Another strong leader who will sit beside the leader for the bill, will be Lord Haldane, who, before his elevation to the peerage was Secretary of War in the Asquith cabinet.

Bryce May Be Ally.

These three will be soon given a mighty ally. It is generally accepted in London political circles that James Bryce, our late ambassador at Washington, is to be raised to the peerage. If Bryce takes a seat in the upper House, the great publicist and author will be a superfirebrand in the Liberal forces. Some of the greatest speeches for home rule made in the Gladstone campaign were made by Mr. Bryce, then member for Aberdeen. They were great through their mastery of history, their farfetched logic and the tremendous amount of personal knowledge of Ireland and her great problem which Bryce had gained, first hand, while serving as chief secretary at Dublin Castle.

Tories Are Strong.

The Tories in the Lords House will be very strong in debating power, much stronger than they are in the Commons. They have Lord Rosebery, who, though erratic to a startling degree, is a great orator and debater. With him will be Lord Lonsdale, the Duke of Abercorn, Lord Londonderry, the Duke of Norfolk, bitterest Tory of them all, to say nothing of the younger element of the Duke of Marlborough, who, though terribly deficient in brain power, may be relied upon to do like "rough house" work which was so brilliantly attended to in the House of Commons by young Lord Cecil and his strong-lunged associates on the Tory benches.

NEVER SUSPECTED KIDNEY TROUBLE—GAINED FIFTY POUNDS IN WEIGHT.

Some time ago I was suffering from what I supposed was rheumatism. I became so bad that I could hardly get on my feet from a sitting position. I ran down in weight from 195 to 145 pounds. I tried different kinds of medicine but received little or no help. I saw Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root highly recommended for kidney trouble but I never had any idea that my kidneys were affected. I thought I would try a fifty-cent bottle of Swamp-Root and see what the effect would be. I commenced taking it according to directions and in a few days I saw that it was helping me. I used the fifty-cent bottle and then bought three more dollar bottles and they completely cured me. I have gone back to my original weight—195 pounds—and I am a thorough advocate of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, as I believe it to be a remarkable preparation for what it is recommended to do. WILLIAM H. PARTCH.

New Haven, Vt.

Personally appeared before me this 4th day of September, 1909, Wm. H. Partch, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

Justice of the peace.

Letter to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Prove What Swamp-Root Will Do For You

Send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. It will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling all about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention the Boston Daily American. Regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

Cardinal O'Connell on Big Home Rule Triumph

Not only will all Irishmen rejoice, but every upright man who loves truth will be the happier tonight because of this action and that justice has been granted.

Our first act is one of thanksgiving to God for this good news, but at the same time we must not forget our sense of gratitude to those valiant Irish leaders in the English Parliament who have fought so nobly and so untiringly.—Statement by Cardinal O'Connell.

PULL URANIUM OFF ROCKS; TOW HER TO HALIFAX FOR REPAIR

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 17.—The liner Uranium, which went ashore in a fog in reefs of Chebucto Head imperilling the lives of over 800 passengers and which was pulled off at high tide early today, has been brought here in tow for repairs.

Captain Eustace, who stuck by his ship, believes she will be able to resume service between New York and Rotterdam within eight weeks. The fore part of her hull is badly damaged.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is 300,000 more than its next highest competitor and 100,000 more than all the other evening papers of Boston combined.

PARENTS THINK DAUGHTER MAY HAVE ELOPED

The relatives of nineteen-year-old Katie Sherin, who has been missing from her home, No. 8 Charles street, Lynn, since last Wednesday, believe she has eloped. The police have been asked to find her.

On March 1st, Mr. Georges, Sr., retires from the Georges business, which he founded away back in 1879—and I take over complete ownership.

My Final Reorganization Effort—the Climax of Value-giving in High Grade Clothes

Georges

GEORGES has always been famous for exceptional values. Value has been the corner stone in the foundation of this brilliantly successful business since its very establishment.

The really shrewd men of Boston know this well. And yet, in the tremendous price sacrifices I am making in this vitally important Reorganization, I am writing a new page in the Georges history of value-giving. And when I say that my present values are absolutely unapproached elsewhere in Boston, it is not boast or bombast, not a mere repetition of a well-worn phrase, but the actual fact, based upon my intimate knowledge of clothes values in America today.

I am sacrificing the present for the future. My goal is the complete ownership of this gigantic business by March 1st. My task is colossal—my reductions proportionately deep—and Boston's response to my appeal is the finest demonstration I've ever been tendered.

DRASTIC BILL AIMED TO STOP STOCK FRAUDS

A commission consisting of Attorney General Swift, Bank Commissioner Thorndike and Commissioner of Corporations Tredry today submitted to the Legislature a drastic bill to protect the public in the sales of all kinds of stocks, bonds, and other securities of a corporate nature.

One provision of the measure is for a fine and imprisonment for offenders against the proposed act.

The bill provides that shares and securities shall not be sold unless the Commissioner of Corporations within a year has certified that information on the financial condition of the company concerned is on file in his office and open to the public.

If shares of stock not so certified by the commissioner are sold or advertised by a person or firm, the commissioner may order the sale to cease and may advertise such order if he sees fit.

Provision is made that the Commissioner of Corporations shall collect information of the financial condition, dividend record, property and earnings of any corporation, co-partnership, company of association whose shares, bonds or other securities are on sale, whether listed on 'change or otherwise by any person or firm engaged in the business of selling shares or securities.

This shall not apply to government, State or municipal securities or to securities of any corporation under duly authorized supervision.

Another paragraph reads:

No person, firm, association or corporation engaged in the business of selling securities, shall offer for sale any such shares or securities in violation of any such order of the commissioner. Sale of uncertified securities shall be punished by not over a $500 fine, and violation of a commissioner's order shall be fined not over $1,000 or imprisonment not longer than one year or both.

Sellers of securities may appeal to a board to consist of the Bank Commissioner, State Treasurer and Director of the Bureau of Statistics.

The Commissioner of Corporations shall have ample power to examine books and papers of dealers in such securities, at the expense of the dealers.

GIRL PRISONERS TELL AMAZING ROBBERY PLOT

An amazing story of robbing North Shore residences, participated in by two girls of seventeen and nineteen and of their plan, according to the Lynn police, to hold up a wealthy Salem woman in the street and rob her of her furs, was told to Police Inspector Broad at Lynn today by one of the girls.

The girls are Estelle Langdon, seventeen years old, of Salem, and Ida Lattimer, nineteen years old, of Peabody. They were arrested with John C. Porter of Marblehead and William Hayes of Lynn. The Lattimer girl, according to Inspector Broad, told this story:

This girl has told me a story which convinces me that there is nothing that her companions would stop at to obtain goods for which they could find a ready sale. Porter, another man not arrested and the two girls were in Salem the other night and laid plans to attack a woman whom they saw walking along the street and steal the valuable furs which she wore.

They had a leaden sling which weighed a pound tied up in a handkerchief and with this they planned to knock the woman senseless and to steal her furs. Very fortunately she met a male acquaintance just as the gang was about to do the job.

The Lattimer girl has admitted that she has committed robberies in Salem and I expect to recover the stolen goods. This gang has disposed of enough stolen property to not only support them but to permit the girls to take one of their trips over to New York upon a vacation.

They have cleaned up houses in Swampscott and Clifton and, from what I have been told, they have robbed Summer residences in Beverly. Some of the goods which they stole were of great value and they have offered to dispose of them at ridiculous prices.

The girls and their companions, the police charge, have robbed many residences of valuable goods in Marblehead, Swampscott and other North Shore places. One of the houses burglarized was the Summer home of S. Shuman and another that of George H. Buckminster of Marblehead. Much of the articles recently stolen the police recovered, they say, in the room occupied by the girls at No. 342 Washington street, Lynn.

The police are looking for another young man in connection with the burglaries.

NEWSPAPER WAGON DRIVERS HAVE BIG ANNUAL DANCE

To look at the newspaper wagon drivers and helpers today one would hardly suspect they had danced the greater part of the night. But they did. It was the annual ball of the Newspaper Drivers, Chauffeurs and Helpers' Union. They are the chaps who guide the speeding delivery wagons and autos, laden with freshly printed editions, through the streets so skilfully.

A man who can steer a delivery wagon through streets traffic the way they can is also pretty good at steering partners in a dance, and the newspaper drivers' ball was a very pretty and delightful gathering. It was held in Odd Fellows' Hall, at Berkeley and Appleton streets, with 200 couples present.

The dance was in charge of A. Pearlstein, chief marshal; A. W. Gaylor, floor director, assisted by W. J. Doherty and H. S. White; Harry L. Walker, chief aide, assisted by A. J. Dooley and Charles Mieres. The aids were J. H. Boyes, J. H. Cannon, A. Gazette, A. Shapiro, J. J. Brown, J. J. Treanor, T. J. O'Connor, Jr., W. H. Boyle, F. Israelite, J. Ashmore, P. Donovan, E. Walsh, B. Pearlman, J. H. Murphy, F. Merer, S. Heivits and J. Keenan.

The officers of the union are Abraham Pearlstein, president; J. Henry Murphy, vice-president; Michael Driscoll, secretary-treasurer, and Charles Mein, recording secretary. The trustees are William E. Collins, Harry L. Walker and James J. Treanor.

THIS PHOTOGRAPH WON HUSBAND IN ALBERTA FOR GIRL

Erucstine L. Cote's picture, which won a husband for her when she left it in the home of a friend, 3,000 miles away.

MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 17.—Mrs. Adrien C. LaRiviere—heroine of a real life romance which might be entitled "Won by a Photograph"—and her husband are today speeding toward Grovard, Alberta, Canada, where their love story really began.

They were married at St. George's Church here, following a rapid courtship when LaRiviere hurried here to seek out Ernestine L. Cote as the original of a photograph he had seen at the home of a friend in Alberta. He fell in love with the picture and demanded whose it might be.

When told it had been left by Miss Cote during a recent visit of hers, he asked for her address, and a letter of introduction. Now hardly a month since Miss Cote left her picture 3,000 miles away from her home city, she is returning to Alberta a bride.

POLICE SEEK SWEETHEART OF BANDIT MANOGUE

Today the Boston police are searching for the girl that drew to Boston William J. Manogue, the bandit-flatfiles, now in Charles Street Jail awaiting a Grand Jury hearing charged with attempting to hold up the Boston & Albany ticket office in the Old South building.

The mysterious young woman is now believed to have played a guiding part in the robber's life. Manogue declares that he thought of quitting and going abroad but the face of the girl he loved in Boston and whom he had met when he was serving his ten regular army at Fort Andrews, haunted him and kept him from fleeing across the Atlantic.

This girl the police want to talk with. Once they have found her they believe that every puzzle surrounding Manogue's life will be revealed.

Manogue stoically refuses to reveal her name. But from one or two clews let fall the police believe that they will find the mysterious Boston beauty within twenty-four hours.

Manogue declares she had great influence upon him, and says it was to gain money to marry her that he raided half a dozen biz ticket offices and held up clerks at the point of his pistol.

30 HEIRS IN NEW ENGLAND TO $7,000,000

Mrs. Florence McCurdy and her sister, Miss Alice Manning, of No. 295 Stevens street, Lowell, have received word from Los Angeles that they will receive a share of the $7,000,000 De Baker estate, as the nearest of about forty relatives of Don Abel Stearns, formerly of Boston, who died in California, forty-two years ago.

The thirty New England relatives, several of whom reside in Greater Boston, banded together and sent attorneys to Los Angeles to look after their interests in the big fortune. Stearns was the first husband of Mrs. Arcadia De Baker, who died last September in Santa Monica.

Statement by Lowell Heirs.

Mrs. McCurdy and Miss Manning today in Lowell made this statement:

Don Abel Stearns was a brother of our grandmother. Her name was Nancy Stearns. She married a man named Manning. Their son was Jerome F. Manning, a lawyer of Lowell. He was our father. Several attorneys have come all the way from California at different times to see us about the matter. We have offered to turn the matter up on a commission basis, but we thought it better to send a lawyer from the East. We had a letter from our lawyer recently in which he stated that our claim was valid and that we certainly would receive our share of the property, which is valued at $7,000,000.

Other New England relatives who expect to share in the property are:

"WILL NOT BUILD TO BOSTON," SAYS O'SHAUGHNESSY

Sir Thomas O'Shaughnessy, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, came to Boston today in his private car over the Boston & Maine railroad. With him were his daughters. Sir Thomas registered at the Copley-Plaza. He said he will take his daughters to the Boston Opera House and will call on President Mellen of the New Haven road, but refused to discuss the Grand Trunk situation. The Canadian railroad head said emphatically his road has no intention of building into Boston, as his traffic arrangements with the New Haven and other New England roads are satisfactory.

"We do not desire to extend our lines beyond the international boundaries at the present time," said Sir Thomas. "We don't think it is necessary for us to build into this city. We do not want to. We do not care to. We have all the transportation facilities we want here at present.

"We are just one of the great many factors in the transportation affairs of Boston. We always consider ourselves in such manner that while we are at the mercy of Boston, instead of their being at our mercy, they will try to use us well."

MEN LIVE LONGER AND ARE BETTER LOOKING

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Six years have been added to the average life, and man today is healthier, better housed and fed and more prone to gout than at any other time in history, according to Dr. John W. Wainwright, in a article in the "American Practitioner."

Read What New Editors Have to Do at Harvard

Here's what they make you do out at Harvard if you are elected an editor of the Crimson, the student daily paper.

E. S. Chubb, a sophomore, was compelled to go to the Sargent Girls' School for Physical Training and count the dumbbells while a class of young women athletes was in session. Fifty girls in "gym" costumes helped Chubb do the counting and applauded him while he "chinned" himself five times on the horizontal bar and proposed to one of the girls.

Fletcher Graves, '15, went to a big Boston department store and had himself fitted for corsets, to the delight of the shop girls and a corps of Crimson editors, who looked on.

Then he returned to Cambridge and carried a piece out of the old Harvard library for a souvenir to be preserved in the Crimson office. Afterwards he "set 'em up" for the staff.

E. D. Nesbit, a sophomore, was attended to in secret session. It was reported that he survived.

No arrests were made.

ENJOINS WIFE FROM DISPOSING OF FURNITURE

Justice Morton in the Superior Court today issued a temporary injunction restraining Mrs. Joseph E. Dugna from selling any more of her household goods until either her rights or those of her husband have been established.

HAPPY, LAUGHING CHILD SHORTLY

If Cross, Feverish, Bilious and Sick, Let "Syrup of Figs" Clean Its Little Waste-Clogged Bowels.

No matter what ails your child, a gentle, thorough laxative physic should always be the first treatment given.

If your child isn't feeling well; resting nicely; eating regularly and acting naturally, it is a sure sign that its little stomach, liver and 30 feet of bowels are filled with foul, constipated waste matter and need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When cross, irritable, feverish, stomach sour, breath bad or your little one has stomachache, diarrhoea, sore throat, full of cold, tongue coated, give a teaspoonful of Syrup of Figs and in a few hours all the clogged up waste, undigested food and sour bile will gently move on and out of its little bowels without griping, griping or weakness, and you will surely have a well, happy and smiling child again shortly.

With Syrup of Figs you are not drugging your children, being composed entirely of luscious figs, senna and aromatics it cannot be harmful, besides they dearly love its delicious fig taste.

Mothers should always keep Syrup of Figs handy. It is the only stomach, liver and bowel cleanser and regulator needed—a little given today will save a sick child tomorrow.

Full directions for children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the package.

Ask your druggists for the full name, "Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna," prepared by the California Fig Syrup Co. This is the delicious tasting, genuine old reliable. Refuse any thing else offered.

NEW ENGLAND WOMEN DISCUSS PROBLEM OF LIVING ON $8 A WEEK

The question "Can a girl live on $8 a week" is attracting widespread interest among working girls and women and the AMERICAN is receiving hundreds of letters. They come not only from this State, but from all parts of New England and give various views and hints on how to maintain respectability and live on $8 a week.

Here are some of the letters:

Here Is Another Solution.

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Of course a girl can live on eight dollars a week easily. Any girl who cannot live on it ought to be ashamed to tell of it. For four dollars a week almost anywhere a girl can get board and room and for twenty-five cents her clothing would be washed. Then there is her car fare, which brings it up to $4.85. I lived in a boarding house for working girls in Union Park street for three years. My board and room came to four dollars a week. Every girl was afforded the opportunity of doing their own washing and ironing. I was earning eight dollars a week and this is the way I disposed of it:

Board and Room	$4.00
Gas for Ironing	.10
Carfare	.90
Insurance	.25
Clothing, etc	3.05
Total	$8.00

Hoping that this may help some one I am, Yours sincerely,

EDNA A. MULLIGAN,

Hyde Park.

Wants "Bank Hours" for Girls.

Editor AMERICAN:

Having woman's interests deeply at heart, I have been greatly interested in the discussion regarding her weekly wage.

Board may be procured at an institution or in private families for $5 per week, leaving the magnificent sum of three whole dollars for incidentals. The question is, will the surroundings of these places be such as to inspire a girl toward the goal of individual achievement?

The usual boarding house is a sorry prospect.

A small apartment in a refined location, even of one room, or shared with another wholly congenial, is really the most satisfactory, the apartment being kept in order by a caretaker.

When a woman once loses the idea of business as a prelude to matrimony she will then be far more interested in her own question as to wages and also to hours. Hours of a woman's working day should be from ten to four, which, if efficient, would bring ample return for her wage.

When woman is educated to the fact that it is in her own hands, and that it is she, and she alone, who may dictate and regulate her own and her sister woman's welfare, she will find that education will be the power that will put even an elephant.

Puts $1 in Bank Every Week.

Editor AMERICAN:

Enclosed please find list, showing how I live on $8 a week:

Rent	$2.00
Board	3.10
Newspapers	.10
Laundry	.50
Clothing	1.00
Fuel	1.00
Amusements	.30
Total	$8.00

The $1 bank money is for a "rainy day."

Hoping this will help someone to get along.

MISS JENNIE BLEAU,

No. 417 High street, Holyoke, Mass.

$5 a Week Enough For Her.

Editor AMERICAN:

I am a working girl and lived comfortably on $5 per week. I also kept myself neat and clean.

As I am one that does not go around much, I found my time more valuable staying in my room repairing and making my clothes look neat. I also did my own washing and ironing in my room. I bought a small gas stove and tube for the small sum of twenty cents. I never went without a good meal, and always a little money in my pocketbook.

Here is how I did it:

Room rent	$1.50
Meals	2.50
Incidentals	.50
Total	4.00
Balance	1.00

IDA FRANKIE,

No. 271 Eustis street, Roxbury.

Three Girls Together.

Editor AMERICAN:

I think $8 per week is small for a woman to live on, but it can be done. My friend, sister and myself rented three rooms for light housekeeping. We slept in one room in order to have a sitting room. We liked our little home. It cost us from $4 to $6 to live. We got good food and cooked it as we liked. We had a woman to wash for $1.50 for all three. As we were earning about $15 a week each, we had a small amount to spend for clothing.

This Girl Lives Well On $8 a Week.

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Can a girl live on $8.00 per week? Yes, and live well.

Of course she cannot "take in" plays, but she can dress well and keep herself neat and trim. I have lived on $8.00 per week for over a year.

This is the way I plan: I prepare my breakfast and supper.

My room is small but cosy and clean. Here is how I manage:

Room	$2.50
One dozen eggs	.45
Butter	.42
Milk	.35
Bread	.08
Total	$3.80

What I spend for the week counts up to about $6. I do my own washing, and I have put $1 in the bank every week for a year.

It is up to the girl. She must know how to plan.

GRAY, FADED HAIR, OR BEAUTIFUL DARK, ATTRACTIVE---CHOOSE, MADAM!

Says Sage Tea Mixed with Sulphur Restores Natural Color and Lustre.

Gray, faded hair turned beautifully dark and lustrous almost over night, is a reality, if you'll take the trouble to mix sage tea and sulphur, but what's the use, you get a large bottle of the ready-to-use tonic, called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy" at drug stores here for about 50 cents. Millions of bottles of "Wyeth's" are sold annually, says a well-known druggist, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

You must dampen a sponge or soft brush with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur and draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Those whose hair is turning gray, becoming faded, dry, scraggly and thin have a surprise awaiting them, because after just one application the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful—all dandruff goes, scalp itching and falling hair stops.

This is the age of youth, gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with the Sage and Sulphur tonight and you'll be amazed at your youthful appearance and the real beauty and healthy condition of your hair within a few days. Inquiry at drug stores here shows that they all sell lots of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur" and the folks using it are enthusiastic.

PUBLIC IS HELPLESS AGAINST DOCTORED FOODS, SAYS CASSIDY

Harry P. Cassidy today draws a moral from his exposures of conditions at the Manhattan Market in Cambridge. At this market, No. 604-610 Massachusetts avenue, Cassidy has shown that evaporated fruits, chemically bleached, were sold without warning to the customer that there was a chemical in the product. He has exposed other frauds perpetrated on the customers of the market. He now shows how such frauds as this give the consumer a full menu of foody, every one drugged.

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

The Manhattan Market in Cambridge has deceived its customers, and has, I believe, broken the law, by selling drugged, medicated, polished, misbranded foods to its customers.

The Manhattan Market is not the only market perpetrating such frauds. You can pick cases at random in every part of the city.

Compared to some others, the Manhattan is not a really FLAGRANT FOOD SWINDLE.

But the Manhattan is FOOLING ITS CUSTOMERS BY SELLING DRUGGED AND MEDICATED FOODS.

I have shown, by chemists' analysis, that these foods contain a percentage of drugs. But some people may ask—"How is that going to harm me?"

Take first the substances with which the samples I had tested, had been adulterated. Sulphur dioxide was the principal one. If you have ever bleached your own straw hat, you have probably used this chemical. Suppose you had been using the powder or liquid, and your baby came creeping into the room and picked up the bottle. Suppose you saw the baby lift that bottle to its lips.

Would you laugh and ask "How does that hurt me?" Or would you spring and snatch the bottle away.

The same principle holds, exactly. For it is the same substance your children eat with their food that the baby would drink from that bottle.

TALC and GLUCOSE were the other adulterants. Glucose is "harmless." That is, it has no deleterious effect on the human system. But the ordinary glucose is apt to be made from corn husks, corn stalks, and other things not up to the standard they should reach. The result is, its food value is practically nil, and the EFFECT OF EATING GLUCOSE IS PRACTICALLY THE SAME AS THE EFFECT OF SHOVELING ASHES INTO YOUR FURNACE.

Talc Is Just Dirt.

As for talc—Gat is simply soapstone. Soapstone is nothing more nor less than dirt. When I was a boy I lived in a region where soapstone lay everywhere just beneath the surface. Whenever a man dug a well he threw up on the edges quantities of this soapstone.

You could get a nice piece and let it dry, and then whittle it into all sorts of fantastic shapes. As you whittled you scraped off dust and little particles of dirt.

If a baby ate this it would probably not hurt it, unless the baby ate too much. But it is DIRT, and so much refuse the body must rid itself of.

These products were sold by the Manhattan Market in such forms that the purchaser got no warning of their adulterated nature. He could not protect himself. He was helpless, because he trusted the market.

Therefore, THIS MARKET, AND OTHERS THAT SELL SIMILAR GOODS UNDER SIMILAR CONDITIONS, BREAK THE FAITH WITH THEIR CUSTOMERS.

Under our present laws, substances not actually injurious to health, or in quantities which are not injurious, may appear in food products. We hope to change that law—to change it so that it will adequately protect the health of the people of the State. For the present, however, the label on the food product is the customer's only protection.

Where Protection Fails.

A person who intelligently reads the labels on all the produce he or she buys protects himself or herself against the worst frauds. But the law that permits substances really injurious to health, to be used in non-injurious quantities, should be changed. Let me show you why.

You may go to a restaurant that uses adulterated food. You want a good dinner and start with oysters. The oysters may be preserved with some chemical.

Then you have some fish. And canned soup, it may have contained a preservative. Suppose it did—as many brands do.

Then you have soup—and if it is there again, the chances are that you will get a product preserved or medicated.

The entree brings its load of drugs. Even the roast meats may contain drugs, and the sauces with which you flavor them, or the sauces and spices with which they are dosed in the restaurant kitchen, almost surely contain drugs.

Quickly Dispels Stomach Distress

Whatever the Trouble, It Disappears in Five Minutes After Taking a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet.

All of the unpleasant sensations attendant upon eating too heartily are almost instantly relieved by a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet.

Uneasiness of the Stomach from Undigested Food Quickly Relieved by a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet.

When you take food into your stomach that is tired and overtaxed, the gastric juices do not form in enough to digest it properly. So the food becomes sour and at once begins to throw off gases. Your stomach becomes inflated just as surely as if you attached a toy balloon to a gas jet. Then the gases and foul odors issue forth and pollute your breath. Your tongue quickly becomes coated and you can taste the foulness that is within you.

Now all this condition is changed almost instantly by a Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablet. This aids digestive juice busy at once—supplies all the digestive elements that were lacking—digests the food in a jiffy and sweetens and refreshes the mucous lining of the stomach and bowels and restores vigor and content.

One grain of a single ingredient in Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets will digest 3,000 grains of food. This saves your stomach and gives it the rest it needs. All muscles require occasional rest if they are ever over-taxed. The stomach is no exception to this rule.

Try a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and you will wonder how you ever got along without them. They are sold at 50 cents by all druggists everywhere.

DROP SHAW AS BANK HEAD AT PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 17.—The dropping of Leslie M. Shaw as president of the First Mortgage Guarantee and Trust Company caused a stir in financial circles today. He was not asked to resign, but merely dropped at the election, with no notice whatever, and William E. Harris elected president pro tem.

It has been a more or less open secret that large interests concerned were greatly disappointed.

SEARCH FELLSWAY SUNDAY FOR BODY OF LETTER CARRIER

Where is Charles J. Lynn, for nine years a Malden letter carrier, who was last seen on December 27 walking up the Murray Hill road leading, to the Middlesex Fells? An attempt to solve the mystery of his disappearance will be made next Sunday, when a group of letter carriers, friends and citizens of Medford and Malden will make a thorough search in the Fellsway. If the hunt fails to reveal Lynn's body, the cause of his disappearance, it is believed, will never be known.

FIND BODY FROM COLLIE'S BARKING

PITTSFIELD, Jan. 17.—Jeffrey Beckwith, seventy years old, a woodchopper, who lived with a brother, Joseph Beckwith, on Taconic Mountain, was found frozen to death in the celery house of Miss Florence Learned's Onoto farm at No. 310 West street. A collie's barking led to the discovery of the body. The medical examiner believes the victim sought shelter and was overcome by the cold.

ASKS FOR STATE INQUIRY INTO ALIENS' STATUS

The creation of a State Commission to study the problem presented by the influx of foreign population into Massachusetts, particularly in respect to its bearing on the industrial interests of the State, and in the matter of their education and assimilation, is advocated by the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

A vote of the directors approves the Chamber's committee on immigration, which has been studying the subject. The committee points out that "although a great deal is being done for the immigrant by public and private authorities, there is still much to be done, as was evinced in Lawrence a year ago and by almost daily occurrences since that time. The committee believes Massachusetts herself should seek to remedy her own peculiar ills."

A commission of five is suggested to be appointed by the Governor and Council. The total expenses for the work are not to exceed $15,000.

Sleuths Chase the Turkey Trot From Policemen's Dance

Turkey trotting made its appearance at the annual ball of the Boston Police Relief Association at Mechanics Hall, but was quickly stopped. The blue-coated guardians of the peace would have none of it.

"Nothing doing! Cut it out," was the word passed around when a home-reged inspector spotted a couple in a far corner of the room dancing the much-mooted "turkey." Then the inspectors found some work right in their line.

They got out around on the trail of the turkey. Everywhere he appeared, his wings were clipped, metaphorically speaking. He couldn't fly at all, not at the police ball.

So they danced the two step, the waltz, the schottische and some say that even the old-fashioned minuet was proposed. But everything was decorous and staid.

Parisian Arbiter of Elegance Coming to Town.

The Chevalier Andre de Fouquieres, soon coming here, discusses cur manners, the Turkey Trot, lovemaking, marriage, and concludes that "To the Pure, all things are festive." EXCLUSIVELY IN SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

URGES PENSIONS FOR ALL STATE'S TEACHING FORCE

"Grant pensions to every public school teacher in the State" is the burden of a plea of the Massachusetts Board of Education in a report to the Legislature.

A draft of a bill submitted with the report provides for compulsory contributions from teachers to a retirement fund. These are to be made for thirty years and are to be not less than $25 annually.

To the payment of the annuity thus earned by the teachers is to be added a pension from the State of an equal amount. Teachers may retire voluntarily at sixty-five and may be compelled to retire at seventy.

The board declares that such legislation would encourage persons of superior ability to enter the teaching profession, would give teachers a greater feeling of security, and would enable the school authorities to retire without hardship teachers who had become incapacitated through age.

The board further recommends to the "particular consideration of the Legislature" the teachers now in the schools who are over sixty.

Prof. Nearing Calls Half the Babies of World 'Calamities'

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Professor Scott Nearing of the University of Pennsylvania, speaking on the subject of eugenics to the Meeting House, Sixty-fourth street and Central Park West, under the auspices of the Federation for Child Study, told his audience that if 1,000 Harvard or Yale graduates were segregated from the rest of civilization they would at the end of the sixth generation have diminished to fifty persons.

Professor Nearing said that as long as only children of society are helped on to life this age cannot expect to attain anything like perfection. He quoted statistics regarding Chinese society, where no medical aid has been given to keep weak children alive, which showed that the average Chinaman is far better able to undergo physical hardship than the average Occidental.

"The great crime of the age," exclaimed Professor Nearing, "is the fact that no attempt is being made to increase the efficiency of the race. To show, for example, how race suicide is on the increase, in 1800 a family of eight children was a common thing, while today one or four is a matter for wonderment. The lamentable part of it is that on Fifth avenue children are a scarcity, while in the tenements they are quite common.

"No American whose wages amount to $600 or less should have children. That amount is not sufficient to maintain and educate them. And as half our families have no more wages than this half of our children may be considered calamities."

BABIES WANTED BY SCORES OF GOOD FAMILIES

Scores of letters continue to come to The AMERICAN from people all over New England asking about the babies whose pictures appeared in the Sunday AMERICAN for whom their mothers want to get good homes.

The story in the SUNDAY AMERICA made a heartfelt appeal to those who love children and who are well, according to their letters and inquiries, to give good homes to these little ones. Many mothers have been found who have children whom they love, but want them to have better homes and better surroundings than can be given by them. Here are some of the letters received today:

Call from Indian Maid.

I have seen in the paper that there were lots of little babies that need a home. My heart goes out to them. Somehow I would love to take one and keep it as mine. I am living in Auburn, out from the city. Of course, I must explain to the Boston AMERICAN that I am an Indian. I would love to get a child brunette with dark hair about five years or a year and a half old.

We are well respected here and could send the little boy to our church. I belong to the Light House Mission in Providence, R. I. I thought it might now be white. So if any mother should feel as though they could trust a little twenty-two-year Indian maid, why please respond and let me know.

Auburn, R. I.

Welcome for Baby G.

I would like to adopt Baby G, whose picture was in the Boston Sunday AMERICAN. You said that any one of those babies whose pictures were in the paper were for adoption. I would like Baby G. I will send the picture so as not to make a mistake. I have no children of my own, and am perfectly capable of taking care of one. My husband and myself both love children, and will give it a good home.

Is Baby G a girl? I would rather have a girl.

Please make arrangements, and write and tell me how I am to get the baby. If I send the fare to you will you bring it up to Gardner to me? I am not very well acquainted with the city, and it would be easier for you to come to Gardner, as you could board the train at Boston and wouldn't have to get off until you reached Gardner depot. I would be at the depot to meet you. Please answer at once. I am anxious.

If you have a photograph of this baby I wish you could send it to me, as I can tell more what she looks like.

Gardner.

Would Like Baby X.

Will you kindly give me all information about Baby X., spoken of in yesterday's AMERICAN—his parentage, age, reason of his needing good home, etc.

We are an American Protestant family of means and can take and care for a child. If attractive in ss, within the ages of 1½ years to three years old.

New Bedford.

About Baby Gordon.

I read in Sunday's AMERICAN of the 12th inst. about a large number of babies to be given away to adoption in good homes.

Now one of the little boys reminds me of a little boy who passed away, and I would like to see or know something about Baby Gordon, two years old. Will you please let me know about him, providing he has not found a home.

Walpole.

Want to See Baby Gordon.

Can you give me details regarding baby Frank Gordon? He was pictured and spoken of in your Sunday AMERICAN as a child who could be adopted. If you could let me know the particulars and where my husband and I can see him, we shall be greatly indebted to you.

Will you please give this your immediate attention?

Brookline.

'L' COMPANY ANNOUNCES NEW SERVICE

The Elevated Company announces the following changes: Beginning tomorrow the company will establish a new transfer privilege at the junction of Harvard and Brighton avenues in Allston. Passengers may then transfer from reward bound Newton-Brighton and Watertown-North Beacon street cars to inward bound Harvard avenue cars, and also from outward bound Harvard avenue cars to outward bound Newton-Brighton and Watertown-North Beacon street cars. These transfers will not be available to passengers boarding the car in the subway.

Beginning tomorrow the company will equip the Belmont-Harvard Square line with semi-convertible cars.

Cars will run by way of Harvard square from Belmont to North Cambridge half-hourly, and from Belmont to Arlington, Lexington and Lowell half-hourly, making a fifteen-minute service during hours of normal riding and an increased service during rush hours to properly accommodate the traffic. North Cambridge cars will be of the company's latest pre-payment type.

Beginning tomorrow, the Arlington line of cars from Sullivan square via Broadway will be run only as far as Arlington Centre, except during the hours of heavy riding when the cars will be operated between Sullivan square and Arlington Heights.

This change in service results from the change in route adopted by passengers riding between Boston and points beyond Arlington Centre since the opening of the Cambridge subway. Between Arlington Centre and Arlington Heights the Sullivan square line is but little used outside of rush hours, and the change in service is made to conform to the new conditions.

Arlington's Baby Farms.

How the babies are "farmed," who farms them, how they are cared for and WHAT BECOMES OF THEM comprises a most interesting story which will be told EXCLUSIVELY IN SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

MASS MEETING FOR LIBELLOR MYLIUS

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Plans for a great mass meeting in Cooper Union to stir up sympathy for Edward F. Mylius, libeller of King George, were announced today by Edward H. James, English editor, who came to this country to contest the ruling of Secretary Nagel that Mylius, now being held on Ellis Island, cannot enter this country.

NEW TONIC HAS INSTANT SUCCESS

The experts who are engaged in introducing Tona Vita in Boston are receiving statements from men and women in every walk of life who have been relieved by this new tonic. Among others received the other day was one from George Webb, of 5 Rollins street, Boston, who stated:

"I had been feeling run down for several years. I was able to do my work, but it required an effort, whereas I had formerly been able to do anything with pleasurable ambition. I was easily tired, and could get no benefit from my sleep. I heard about the new tonic, Tona Vita, and purchased a bottle. I found that it was everything that had been represented. After the first few doses I experienced relief, and now I feel better than I have felt for years. This is entirely owing to Tona Vita."

"My nauseaka is only one of many hundreds," stated John Beazley Webb, the English author, who is assisting in introducing Tona Vita. "Every day men and women are coming in telling me how much better they are feeling since they took Tona Vita. Many of them suffer entirely different symptoms. One woman suffered from dizzy and fainting spells; her nerves were constantly on edge and she would jump at the slightest noise; she could not do her housework, because she always felt so tired. The next minute another woman will come in and say that before taking Tona Vita she experienced severe pains in the head and back; that there was always an internal gnawing sensation; that she was constantly bilious and had no appetite, etc. But they all express themselves as feeling 'run down,' and this is one of the surest symptoms of nervousness.

"Tona Vita had the best sale in the drug stores of Boston yesterday since it has been introduced."

Wants Baby Sent Parcel Post, Stork Not Having Called

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—The stork having failed to call at the home of a Georgia woman, she has appealed to Postmaster General Hitchcock to see if Uncle Sam will undertake the work by parcel post. This is the letter he is studying today:

Fort McPherson, Ga.

Postmaster-General, Washington, D. C. Sir: I have been corresponding with a party in Pa about getting a baby to rais our home being without One.) May I ask you what specifications to use in wrapping so if baby would comply with regulations and be allowed shipment by parcel post as the express co are to rough in handling.

Yours,

GIRL ABDUCTION CHARGE QUASHED

The charge that his daughter was being detained in Boston for illegal purposes was made today by the father of Mary Tapounia, seventeen, of Braintree, in the police courts, when Monroe Patsard of East Howard street, Quincy, was arraigned on a charge of abducting the girl. The court dismissed the abduction charge. The girl vanished from her home December 22, which on petition for having run away last Winter with a man.

BABIES WANTED BY SCORES OF GOOD FAMILIES

Scores of letters continue to come to The AMERICAN from people all over New England asking about the babies whose pictures appeared in the Sunday AMERICAN for whom their mothers want to get good homes.

The story in the SUNDAY AMERICA made a heartfelt appeal to those who love children and who are well, according to their letters and inquiries, to give good homes to these little ones. Many mothers have been found who have children whom they love, but want them to have better homes and better surroundings than can be given by them. Here are some of the letters received today:

Call from Indian Maid.

I have seen in the paper that there were lots of little babies that need a home. My heart goes out to them. Somehow I would love to take one and keep it as mine. I am living in Auburn, out from the city. Of course, I must explain to the Boston AMERICAN that I am an Indian. I would love to get a child brunette with dark hair about five years or a year and a half old.

We are well respected here and could send the little boy to our church. I belong to the Light House Mission in Providence, R. I. I thought it might now be white. So if any mother should feel as though they could trust a little twenty-two-year Indian maid, why please respond and let me know.

Auburn, R. I.

Welcome for Baby G.

I would like to adopt Baby G, whose picture was in the Boston Sunday AMERICAN. You said that any one of those babies whose pictures were in the paper were for adoption. I would like Baby G. I will send the picture so as not to make a mistake. I have no children of my own, and am perfectly capable of taking care of one. My husband and myself both love children, and will give it a good home.

Is Baby G a girl? I would rather have a girl.

Please make arrangements, and write and tell me how I am to get the baby. If I send the fare to you will you bring it up to Gardner to me? I am not very well acquainted with the city, and it would be easier for you to come to Gardner, as you could board the train at Boston and wouldn't have to get off until you reached Gardner depot. I would be at the depot to meet you. Please answer at once. I am anxious.

If you have a photograph of this baby I wish you could send it to me, as I can tell more what she looks like.

Gardner.

Would Like Baby X.

Will you kindly give me all information about Baby X., spoken of in yesterday's AMERICAN—his parentage, age, reason of his needing good home, etc.

We are an American Protestant family of means and can take and care for a child. If attractive in ss, within the ages of 1½ years to three years old.

New Bedford.

About Baby Gordon.

I read in Sunday's AMERICAN of the 12th inst. about a large number of babies to be given away to adoption in good homes.

Now one of the little boys reminds me of a little boy who passed away, and I would like to see or know something about Baby Gordon, two years old. Will you please let me know about him, providing he has not found a home.

Walpole.

Want to See Baby Gordon.

Can you give me details regarding baby Frank Gordon? He was pictured and spoken of in your Sunday AMERICAN as a child who could be adopted. If you could let me know the particulars and where my husband and I can see him, we shall be greatly indebted to you.

Will you please give this your immediate attention?

Brookline.

CHINESE COUPLE WED AT PITTSFIELD

PITTSFIELD, Jan. 17.—Sai Wing, proprietor of a Chinese restaurant, is on his honeymoon today with his bride, who was Miss Frances Yuen of Brooklyn. The marriage took place in the Morningside Baptist parsonage, and was the first Chinese bridal Pittsfield has known. The clergyman and his wife received fine gifts of silks and satins, including a $500 table cover.

WOMEN FIGHT TO SAVE FUNDS IN BANK CASE

GLOUCESTER, Jan. 17.—The possibility that a large number of women will suffer severely financially now looms large in the further investigation of the tangled affairs of the defunct City National Bank. Several women are expected to join the stockholders who plan to organize to protect their interests.

There is talk of attempting to secure an injunction to prevent further activity by the liquidating agents, following the stir that has been caused by their plan to sue five directors on their indorsements of the notes of the late William A. Pew, who ran the "one man bank."

Mr. Pew's son today denied rumors that his father died a suicide.

One of the women among the minority stockholders who has sustained heavy losses by the slump in the bank stock is Mrs. Elizabeth Leighton, a widow, whose husband was formerly a director of the bank. Mrs. Leighton's stocks are said to total close to $20,000.

Mrs. Fred Knott of Manchester, daughter of Mrs. Leighton, held several shares which she had purchased from her savings.

James F. Ayer, who died fifteen years ago, leaving an estate valued between $150,000 and $200,000, named Mr. Pew and Ja[illegible] E. Bradley of Annisquam as trustees now, according to a lawyer interested in the case. Mrs. Ayer holds stock in the City National Bank, which she received as collateral on loans. The stock, quoted in 1903 as high as $300 for shares having a par value of $100, will not realize more than $30, it is believed.

It is said a trust fund left to the Addison Gilbert Hospital by the Rev. J. J. Heahy may show an alarming shrinkage because of the depreciation of several blocks of shares the priest held in the bank.

Miller, assistant secretary; Rev. James Todd, D.D., chaplain.

MRS. J. W. TIMMONS' AUTO INJURES GIRL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—Molly Cooley, seventeen, a domestic, is at a hospital here in a critical condition as a result of having been run down by Mrs. J. W. Timmons, daughter of ex-Vice-President Fairbanks, and wife of President Taft's naval aide, while the latter was returning in her automobile from the theatre.

'BALD JACK' ROSE AS HE LOOKS IN NEW BLACK WIG

Shining Black Wig Covers the Pate of "Bald Jack" Rose

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—To match the cloak of respectability which "Bald Jack" Rose assumed following the trial and conviction of Lieutenant Charles Becker, he has donned a wig. No longer will his naked pate adorn proceedings where corrupt police officials or murderous gunmen get their dues. Long, shining bizarre locks of black will obscure it.

Altogether the wig has had the effect of wonderfully humanizing the hawklike aspect of the informer.

Rose is sensitive about the wig. He refused to respond today to questions of friends as to the color, parting, etc.

"What color did your hair use to be?" he was asked.

"I don't know, it's so long since I had any that I don't remember," he said.

HUNT MAD DOG IN MIDDLEBORO; TEN ARE BITTEN

MIDDLEBORO, Jan. 17.—Posses today searched the town and country around to find a black, tan and white beagle hound who ran wild through the streets, bit ten persons and then disappeared. Policemen joined the posses. Guns were brought out.

The most seriously injured is Miss Mildred Martin, whose leg was lacerated. A physician dressed the wound.

The other victims were Leroy Quintly, William McAllister, Miss Ida Darling, Mrs. Frank Grinnell, William Robb, A. M. Cushing, Samuel Hathaway, Sanford A. Sisson and Preston Southworth. They are seriously hurt.

Business was suspended while the dog, whose owner is unknown, was about the streets. Those who could not get to their homes ran into stores, which were closed for the time being.

Physicians were very busy answering wounds cauterized.

HOW MRS. WILSON PREPARES GEORGIA INDIAN PUDDING

Here is a simply made but delicious dish that the poor man's wife can as easily prepare as a high-priced chef. It is a recipe of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, wife of the President-elect.

Place four cups of sweet, rich milk into a double boiler. Moisten in a little of the milk four rounded tablespoonfuls of yellow Indian meal, and add to the milk when hot, stirring it well. Then add half a cup of molasses, a little salt, a tablespoonful of ground ginger and a teaspoonful of cinnamon. Stir well and add four rounded tablespoonfuls of butter. Mix well and then pour into a baking dish with a pint of cold milk added and well stirred in. Bake in a slow oven three hours. Sometimes raisins are added. Serve with hard sauce.

REYES WARNS U. S. TO LOOK OUT FOR JAPAN

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—General Rafael Reyes, former president of Colombia, arrived here by the Kaiser Wilhelm II., with a steadfast warning to this country to beware of Japan. The general was asked what he thought about the fortification of the Panama Canal, and he replied:

Fortify the canal immediately and as best you can. Now that America has ended the stupendous task of joining the waters of the Pacific to those of the Atlantic she must not stop until she has made the canal safe against the attack that is certain to come. I mean that Japan will cause trouble in that portion of the continent before long, and the only way for the United States to offset such an attack is to fortify the canal—both by coast and land defences—and make it impregnable.

New Bowling Record Made by Women on Hackensack Alleys

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Mrs. John J. Duffy, wife of ex-Fire Chief Duffy of Hackensack, N. J., established a new record for women bowlers in the State and probably in the country when she rolled a score of 263. She made nine straight strikes.

Up to then she had rolled a large rubber ball, but Mrs. Duffy concluded to try a lighter ball, and then made a three-pin split. The record score was made on the Hackensack Wheelmen alleys, and it is the highest score made on the alleys this season, by either a man or a woman.

Our Second Semi-Annual 11c Sale

Gives You 25c to 50c Values for 11c

This sale ends tomorrow night. It started Monday morning and it has given us one of the busiest weeks this store has ever known in any January. The people who profited by our 11c Sale last June remembered the bargains they got then, and came back with increased forces—besides, hundreds of others came in response to our announcement—all came expecting big things, and from the amount of our sales their expectations must have been realized.

It gives us pleasure to know that our efforts are being appreciated and to have the public's faith in us and our goods endorsed so emphatically.

The strength of the sale rests upon the firm foundation of value—a foundation that has its corner stone, "Your Money Back If You Want It." Many of the lots are small and may not last throughout the day. We advise early buying.

O'MEARA SHOWS BOSTON CRIMES ARE INCREASING

Is Boston going to the bow-wows, literally?

The question is raised by students of social ethics as a result of conditions shown in the annual report of Police Commissioner O'Meara, who announces that crimes against morality show an increase of 622—from 1,294 to 1,916—in twelve months. This is 307 more than in any time in the last five years.

The percentage of increase for 1912 over the preceding year is nearly 50 per cent.

Total arrests in the city for the year numbered 75,496, an increase of slightly more than 5,000 over 1911. The number of arrests of persons from outside Boston decreased by almost 2 per cent., indicating that for the increase in the arrests only Boston itself is to blame.

Twenty persons were killed and 482 injured by automobiles in 1912, an increase from the six killed and 127 injured in 1908. That the commissioner attributes almost wholly to the increased speed of the machines.

O'Meara on Auto Injuries.

The commissioner says:

I believe that the principal cause of the growth of the list of killed and injured is the increase in the average speed of motor vehicles. To the same cause may be charged an enormous amount of anxiety, inconvenience and delay suffered by the traveling public. This phase of the case is incapable of statistical representation, but every person who attempts to cross a street or to enter or leave a street car where automobiles are numerous knows what it means.

The suggestion that Boston have a traffic squad modelled after New York's is deprecated by the commissioner, who says:

The Traffic Problem.

To send a Boston policeman to New York on the supposition that he could observe and apply the New York methods to the narrow, crowded and irregular streets into which Boston business is packed would be very much as if a man who was required to ride a bucking bronco should try to train for the work by practicing on a rocking horse.

The commissioner reports that a seven-day investigation into arrests for drunkenness revealed the following: Whole number arrested in week, 1,000; men, 850; women, residents of Boston, 536; non-residents, 514.

Of 644 who told where they got their liquor, 259 named single places where they had bought their entire supply.

"The third degree," the commissioner says, is not used or known in Boston.

The number of total arrests in the last five years was as follows: 1908, 68,146; 1909, 71,512; 1910, 71,201; 1911, 70,442; 1912, 75,496.

DANDRUFF AND SCALP TROUBLE

Caused Itching, Burning and Falling Out of Hair. Scratched Head in Sleep. Hair Dry and Looked Dead. Ashamed to be Seen In Public Bare-headed. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

R. F. D. No. 1, West Milford, Ga.—"For three years I was troubled with dandruff and scalp trouble. Dandruff covered my head which caused itching, burning and falling out of my hair. I scratched my head in my sleep and awoke with my scalp inflamed. My hair was dry and looked dead and as almost it came out so badly that I thought I would have none left. I was ashamed to be seen in public bare-headed because the dandruff showed through the hair.

I tried several remedies but they did not prove successful. Sometime ago I saw in the paper an advertisement about Cuticura Soap and Ointment and I sent for some. I used the Cuticura Soap and Ointment for two months and they cured me." (Signed) Miss A. Wrghams, Oct. 15, 1912.

A generation of mothers has found no soap so well suited for cleansing and purifying the skin and hair of infants and children as Cuticura Soap. Its absolute purity and refreshing fragrance alone are enough to recommend it above ordinary skin soaps, but when are added to these qualities delicate yet effective emollient properties, derived from Cuticura Ointment, which render it most valuable in overcoming a tendency to distressing eruptions and promoting a normal condition of skin and hair health. Sold everywhere. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold by druggists and dealers the world over. Cuticura Soap will be found best for skin and scalp.

UNION MEMBERS TO INSPECT NEW CIGAR FACTORY

An event of unusual interest in manufacturing circles in Boston will be the inspection by 5,000 men, women and girls who will take part tomorrow night in the housewarming of the new model factory of the Waitt & Bond Cigar Manufacturing Company, at No. 716 Columbus avenue. The factory, which overlooks the Columbus avenue playground and the National League ballfield, is considered one of the most modern and up-to-date in the country, besides one of the biggest. It will have a capacity of 75,000,000 cigars yearly.

Tomorrow night's inspection party will be made up of 2,400 members of the Cigarmakers' Union, with their wives and families, a hundred apprentices, and 700 girls in the Tobacco Strippers' Union. Admission will be by union cards. There will be music and refreshments and dancing.

The twentieth century cigar factory boasts is made of reinforced concrete, is seven stories high and 160 feet square. When asked what he considered the distinctive feature of his new factory, President William Waterman said it consisted in perfect sanitation and ventilation.

Safety and light have also received especial care. There are no dark or awry where, while over the heads of the employes are electric lights suspended by wires of convenient length.

Every room is provided with sanitary drinking fountains. Each employe is to have an individual metal locker and the lavateries on each floor have the latest plumbing.

One entire floor is given up to a restaurant, where the one thousand employes can get their noon meal.

EASTERN COMPANY IN COMBINE, SAYS PRESIDENT BULL

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—A. H. Bull of New York, of the Bull Steamship Company, today testified before the House Committee on Merchant Marine, investigating the Shipping Trust, that the Atlantic coast trade to Porto Rico is controlled by a combine, dominated by the Atlantic Gulf & West Indies Steamship Company, their vessels operating in New York and Porto Rico Line, the Clyde Line, the Mallory Line and the Eastern Steamship Company.

He said that these companies had an arrangement with railroads in the United States whereby the railroads refused to pro-rate for any lines outside the combine.

Asked what he thought a proper remedy, he replied that a commission to regulate rates of steamship lines would do much good.

G. O. WALES LEAVES CHURCH $20,000

By the will of George O. Wales of Braintree, filed in Norfolk County Probate Court at Dedham today the American Unitarian Association receives $20,000 for All Souls' Church at Braintree. If the church is dissolved the money is to be used for charitable or religious purposes. For his wife, $10,000 is set aside, and of the residue of the estate, one-third is to be used for the wife and two-thirds for the five children. No estimate was made of the value of the estate.

She has just sprung into the limelight, and she bids fair to be in the public eye for some time to come. WHO IS SHE and WHAT DOES SHE DO? Her picture—and she's a very good looking young lady—and the story of her achievements will appear EXCLUSIVELY IN SUNDAY'S AMERICAN.

YOUR HAIR IS FLUFFY, BEAUTIFUL AND LUSTROUS IN A FEW MOMENTS

Girls! Get a 25-cent bottle of "Danderine" and try this. Also stops falling hair; destroys dandruff.

Your hair becomes light, wavy, fluffy, abundant and appears as soft, lustrous and beautiful as a young girl's after a "Danderine hair cleanse." Just try this—moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. This will cleanse the hair of dust, dirt and excessive oil, and in just a few minutes you have doubled the beauty of your hair.

Besides beautifying the hair at once, Danderine dissolves every particle of dandruff; cleanses, purifies and invigorates the scalp, forever stopping itching and falling hair.

But what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you will actually see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair growing all over the scalp. If you care for pretty, soft hair and lots of it, surely get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any druggist or toilet counter, and just try it.

DUDLEY F. MALONE, TO BE SECRETARY OF NEW PRESIDENT

Dudley Field Malone is the son-in-law of Senator O'Gorman of New York, and an assistant corporation counsel of that city. He has been a stanch political supporter and intimate personal friend of Woodrow Wilson for a long time, and was one of the managers of his pre-convention campaign in New England.

LOWER DUTIES DEMANDED BY CIGAR MAKERS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 17.—John R. Young of Philadelphia, a manufacturer of tobacco, before the House Ways and Means Committee today urged a reduction in the duties on wrappers and fillers from $1.85 per pound to $1. He declared importation would decrease if the duties were reduced and complained the chief result of the present high tax was to give the Tobacco Trust a chance to resort to unfair tactics.

Charles Fox, secretary of the Leaf Tobacco Board of the United States, also urged a reduction.

John H. Duys of New York, representing leaf tobacco interests, declared the high present duty was driving out thousands of small tobacco manufacturers, and he said the only demand for protection came from growers of Florida and Connecticut, who now were receiving a protection of practically 300 per cent. He said if the duty were reduced on Sumatra wrappers, there would be a big increase in importations. Questioned by members of the committee, he withdrew the statement and said he believed the revenues would increase.

CHECK ON CHILD LABOR URGED AS A BLOW AT VICE

The abolition of child labor and the establishment of a minimum wage for women were emphasized as two reforms which would save many a moral tragedy, at a discussion at the Boston City Club when President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot, Clifford G. Roe executive secretary of the American Vigilance Association, and R. A. Woods of the South End house sounded a call for the suppression of vice in big cities.

President Eliot declared:

We have got to remedy these evils or the country will not be ruled by the races which are now here. The family life in the white race is at stake in its purity, healthfulness and fertility.

R. A. Woods discussed some of the causes and remedies of vice in Boston today, saying in part:

Much is to be hoped for from the attack upon the more immediate causes of the evil. Poverty is not in itself a compelling cause in any considerable number of instances; but poverty keeps great numbers of women on or near the brink where they may be carried over by the perfectly natural desire for amusement and for a sharp reaction from monotonous work. The abolition of child labor and the establishment of a minimum wage for women will have direct and indirect results in the way of saving many a moral tragedy. Alcohol in many of both sexes is a strongly conducive influence.

Negotiations are conducted chiefly in three ways, all of which a determined purpose could reach and could practically eliminate. There is the use of the telephone. The telephone company could stop this if it were a matter of dividends to do so. There is the use of cabmen. This evil could be reached with comparative ease.

Both of these instrumentalities are, however, comparatively unimportant. The chief headquarters for the promotion of the traffic today are in some thirty or thirty-five licensed hotels where all preliminary negotiations are openly carried on.

These hotels, which the most guileless person knows are not hotels in any real sense of the word, are given full authority by the Boston Licensing Board to continue a business, the nature of which the members of the board and every knowing citizen understand.

The city of Boston, thus, through a board appointed and authorized by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and clothed with absolute power, is at this moment conducting a system for the public licensing of exchanges in which the contract and agreement stage of the business is, in the face of all observers, nightly carried out.

WOMAN GETS $800 RESULT OF BUMP

HARTFORD, Ct., Jan. 17.—The jury in the Superior Court in the case of Mrs. Elizabeth Galbreth of Holyoke, Mass., who sued the town of East Hartford for $5,000 damages as a result of injuries she received while going over a bump in the road while on an automobile trip through that town, has awarded a verdict for the plaintiff for $800.

POSTPONE DONOVAN INQUEST TO TUESDAY

The inquest on the death of Mrs. Mildred Donovan of Revere, whose body was found near the Holy Cross Cemetery at Malden, was put over today until next Tuesday by Judge Charles M. Bruce of the Malden District Court. This was necessary because several witnesses were unable to attend until that time.

CHILD LABOR LAW VIOLATED, SAYS M'MANUS

That the 54-hour-a-week law is being flagrantly violated right in Boston as well as in other big municipalities throughout the Commonwealth is the declaration made by Representative P. Joseph McManus of Ward 19, Roxbury, in a statement to the AMERICAN.

Representative McManus declares that he is now preparing a bill to amend the 54-hour law so as to make it practically impossible for employers to violate the law without leaving themselves open to heavy punishment.

Representative McManus has been affiliated with labor organizations in Boston for a number of years and has made a careful study of labor conditions in Massachusetts and in Boston in particular. He is therefore qualified to speak with some degree of authority on child labor evils. He is a graduate of the Georgetown University and a lawyer. He is at present serving on the Legislative Committee on Labor, with which this year consider proposed legislation dealing with labor conditions in the state from the standpoint of the public health.

Representative McManus says:

"There are children in Boston at the present time who are working eight and nine hours a day in 'sweatshops' and who are compelled by their employers, when they are through with their day's work, to take work home with them. If they refuse to do this they are discharged.

"In this manner the employers evade the law and deprive the children of an opportunity to secure the recreation which they so sadly need after a hard day's toil, and, what is much more important, prevent those children from attending the evening schools and bettering their education.

"A law should be passed at once to do away with this practice.

"This evasion of the law to which I refer is not practiced exclusively in the so-called 'sweat-shops.' It is done in a number of bookbinding concerns as well.

"The Legislature cannot afford to hesitate in this matter. It should at once pass legislation to remedy the existing evil.

"Child labor constitutes one of the greatest curses to the country. It must be curbed. The welfare of the State and nation demand it."

"It is essential that children should receive a proper education before starting out for life's great battle and any condition under which the children are prohibited or deprived from securing this education is greatly to the detriment of the country, for upon these children in the future will depend the prosperity and well being of the nation."

3 BUNGALOWS NEAR GLOUCESTER BURNED

GLOUCESTER, Jan. 17.—Three bungalows at Fernwood, owned by Chester Norwood, were destroyed by an incendiary fire today, with a loss of $7,000. The auto chemical of the Gloucester fire department was caught in the mud near the buildings and probably would have been destroyed, too, had not other fire apparatus dragged the vehicle to safety.

HOLD CHAUFFEUR WHO HIT TROLLEY

George E. Powell, a chauffeur, of No. 7 Ashford street, Allston, was arrested today on a charge of intoxication, after he had run his automobile into an inward bound electric car at the corner of Massachusetts and Commonwealth avenues. The machine and the car were both damaged and passengers in the car were shaken up.

The Temptations of a Working Girl

By Hal Reade

A Thrilling Story of the Trials of a Beautiful Girl in a Great City

JACK took Mamie in one long, lingering embrace. He still held her in his arms when the Governor re-entered the room. They were standing in silence when the door was flung violently open and Ainsleigh Wharton plunged into the room. He was white with fright, and a great patch of blood stained his shirt front. "Save me! Save me!" he cried. Then he pitched headlong onto the floor. Stunned by the interruption, no one moved. Before they could recover their senses Bates sprang through the open door and, with a snarl, sprang upon Wharton, stabbing him with a shoe knife again and again.

Tear Bates from Wharton

The warden and a guard who had followed Bates leaped upon him and tore off his victim.

"My God, Bates, what have you done!" cried the warden.

"I have killed Ainsleigh Wharton, Mr. Warden," said Bates, looking with hatred at his dying foe. "He turned traitor to me, Mr. Warden. He is dying, Mr. Warden, and when I am electrocuted for killing him we'll meet again."

"Take him away, guard," said the warden, in shocked tones.

The dying Wharton raised himself on his elbow. "No! no!" he cried. "Wait—keep him here. I am dying. He killed Annie Lawrence. I paid him to do it. I wanted her out of the way. She thought I had deceived her by a false marriage, but we were honestly wed. Jack Fallon is innocent."

With this confession on his lips he sank back dead on the floor.

Bates turned to the warden and said: "This is the only truth Ainsleigh Wharton ever told. I killed Annie Lawrence."

With a cry of joy, Mamie threw her arms about Jack's neck. "Jack, Jack, did you hear? God has answered my prayers."

"Justice, life, honor, Mamie, mine—all mine," said Jack." Until death do us part."

All Ends Happily

In the investigation made after the death of Wharton it was shown that after the warden had given him permission to visit the prison he had gone to the shoemaking shops and bribed the guard to allow him to have a few words with Bates. The guard had brought them to a room next to the warden's office for the talk. They had whispered together for a few minutes when Wharton made a remark which maddened Bates. He sprang at his old employer like a tiger and plunged the knife, which he had concealed when he left the shop into Wharton's heart. With a cry of terror and anguish Wharton fled to the nearest door, with Bates in hot pursuit. The end of the tragedy was witnessed in the warden's office by the persons he had wronged so deeply.

As all things work out rightly in the end, so it was in the lives of Mamie Malloy and Jack Fallon. They received their reward, and the villains were punished. Jack Fallon was pardoned by the Governor, Bates was executed in Sing Sing. Jack is now the superintendent of the chair factory in which he started as the lowest employe.

He and Mamie are living with Mrs. Malloy and Bessie, now a school girl, in their Long Island home. Dick Malone was freed by the Governor, and Katie Kerrigan married him on the day of his release.

THE END.

FOSS DEMANDS WIDE INQUIRY BY ECONOMY BOARD

Governor Foss today called on the State Board of Economy and Efficiency to make a searching investigation of departments which have asked for large appropriations. He sent the following letter to Norman H. White, the head of the board:

In accordance with the provisions of Chapter 710 of the Acts of 1912, I request you to make an examination of the following boards which are asking for large special appropriations, state Board of Education, State Board of Agriculture, charitable institutions and State Board of Charity, the Adjutant General's office, the Metropolitan Park Commission, institutions for the blind and the State Board of Insanity.

The economy and efficiency board made a report to the governor of every department a month ago last April. In the course of the report Mr. White said:

"The Commissioners of Massachusetts has probably resulted in a large financial saving to the state, but the cost of government has increased more than the increase of the Commonwealth, so that the average State tax in the State continues to appear from present sources of information that the tax will probably make the next year's tax higher than it is now. It is our opinion that the State ought to know the details of the Commissioners' recommendations before the appropriations are made."

Married Life the Third Year

Helen Is Made to Realize the Uncertainty of a Salaried Position

"WELL I heard Harry Lee Ramsdale didn't like it at all," announced Warren at the dinner table.

Helen, who was serving the salad, looked up with a sign of dismay.

"Oh, you don't mean that he's out of Crane & Barker's?"

"That's what I said, wasn't it? Pretty hard on the family."

"But, Warren—tell me about it! Why I thought he was almost one of the firm, and he's been there so long surely no one dreamed—"

"Oh, yes. Like the rest, he's been there for some time. Since Baker died there's been a lot of changes there. Edwards told me last Summer he wouldn't be surprised if they got Randall out sooner or later."

"But I thought he was invaluable to them? Hasn't he done most of their buying for years?"

"Nobody's invaluable to any firm these days. Randall's over fifty, he's worked up to a pretty good salary, and now they want to get in a younger and cheaper man."

"Surely they wouldn't discharge him on account of his age—after he's been with them all these years and helped build up the business?"

"That's what they're doing every day—not only Crane & Baker, but nine-tenths of the other firms. Loyalty to old employes isn't a business asset in this country."

"But, dear, what will the Randalls do? Do you think he'll get another position that will pay him as well?"

"If he gets anything at all, he's lucky. They're not taking on men of that age now."

"And Mrs. Randall and the children—it's a DREADFUL!"

"Yes, and I guess they haven't saved anything. They've always lived right up to his income."

"Do you know what he was getting?" asked Helen.

"About four or five thousand a year. But they've lived well, and he as good as told me some time ago that he hadn't been able to save. If he had a few thousand dollars it'd be a mighty big help in getting in some other concern or even starting in a small way for himself. He's square, and everybody in his line likes him. But he doesn't stand much chance now without any capital."

"And Mrs. Randall," murmured Helen again. "Oh, I can't help thinking of her. She's so proud. I'll always see her tilting with a coffee-pot. Would it be all right for me to go to see her? or I should love to, if I thought she wouldn't think it merely curiosity. Do you think she would?"

Helen Calls on Mrs. Randall

"I don't know; she might," admitted Warren. "You never can tell how a woman will take things. You'll have to decide that for yourself."

All that evening and the next day Helen was haunted with the thought of this overwhelming misfortune that had come to the Randalls. She did not quite know if it was customary to call on one's friends at such a time, but the thought that she might be some help or comfort finally decided her to go, even at the risk of being misunderstood.

It was just a little after five when she reached the Randalls' apartment, and the trim maid ushered her in.

The moment she entered Helen seemed to feel the atmosphere of a suppressed tragedy, although there was nothing in the surroundings to suggest it. The front room where she waited was in its usual exquisite order. A red berried plant with a red satin bow and a pile of Christmas cards on the table were lingering remnants of the holidays. Helen noticed curiously with the tense brooding silence.

He [illegible] and [illegible] in a house after a funeral. The blinds were all up, everything was as usual, yet she felt [illegible] of death.

A sound of sobs in the next room and Mrs. Randall entered. She seemed to have aged ten years since Helen saw her last. She greeted her as though nothing had happened.

For several moments their conversation was only that of a formal afternoon call. Helen felt now that she had made a mistake in coming. She knew it must be torture for Mrs. Randall to sit there and talk of trivial, impersonal things. And since she did not refer to her husband and the loss of his position Helen of course could not.

Then a little niece from Albany spent the day with Mrs. Randall was saying conventionally. "She's just Eleanor's age. This was her first visit to Boston, and we think she enjoyed it."

Just here, to Helen's surprise, Mr. Randall appeared at the door. He was evidently on his way out, for he had his coat and hat.

"Must I go and get those papers? I'd better take them."

Then seeing Helen, he came forward and greeted her cordially. But Helen felt that his manner was forced. He, too, seemed older; there were anxious haggard lines in his face that she had never noticed before.

When a few moments later the outer door closed after him, Mrs. Randall, who had gone with him into the hall, came back, threw herself on the couch and burst into tears.

"Oh, you know, of course," she sobbed. "Everybody knows! At first I wanted to pretend that nothing had happened—but I can't—I can't. I try to keep up before him—so he won't break down. But I don't know what we're going to do—I don't know what we're going to do!"

"Oh, you mustn't give way like this," murmured Helen, almost on the verge of tears herself. "Nothing is ever as bad as it seems at first."

"Oh, yes, this is! And I blame myself! If we had been more economical—we've never saved—I always felt sure that he would be taken into the firm. But now Mr. Baker died everything is different!

But a week with Mr. Randall's experience—surely it won't be hard for him to get into something." Helen tried to say it reassuringly.

"Oh but his age is against him. He's already written or had an interview with every leading silk house—they're all suspicious, but there isn't any opening—and that's the only business he knows."

She got up now and walked excitedly up and down the room.

"We've been living at the rate of $4,000 a year—right up to his salary! Oh, yes, I want to talk to you! It'll help me—just to put it into words. We've never saved—we never thought we had to! And now—what are we to do? A family of five with fixed expenses of almost $300 a month and not one cent coming in! When his salary stopped—everything stopped. Oh, what are we to do? I haven't slept an hour for four nights—and I know he hasn't."

No Way Out of Her Trouble

"Oh, but something will happen. There'll be some way out of it—there always is," breathed Helen, trying desperately to think of something to say that was not too futile—that would really help.

"Our rent here is $1,200," went on Mrs. Randall, and Helen could feel by the way she said it how many times she had gone over all these details in the sleepless nights. "And outside of the rent, just the gas and light and food is over $3 a day. I've told the maid I'd have to let her go the first—at least I can do the work, but that saves only $26 a month. And what's that, when we won't have a cent to pay all the other expenses? What are we going to do?" desperately. "What do other people do when their income stops?"

"Couldn't you rent your apartment furnished?" ventured Helen.

"Where could we go? We'd have to live somewhere."

Helen thought of cheaper rooms and boarding houses, but she had not the courage to suggest them.

"There's Henry and I and the three children. We couldn't live anywhere cheaper than we're living now."

When Helen finally left, she started to walk home. It was all of twenty blocks, but she wanted to walk. She wanted the cold, stinging air in her face, for she felt dazed and crushed with the sense of her helplessness and Mrs. Randall's reiterated cry of "What shall we do?"

In her heart she knew that this must have happened to other people and that they managed somehow. But just how the Randalls would manage she could not see.

It was after six when she reached home. Warren was already there. From the street she could see him in the library reading by the green shaded lamp. As she opened the door of their apartment the warmth and security and protection of her home swept over her as it never had before. Without waiting to take off her wraps she rushed into the library.

Warren saw that something had happened, and he had made his book, submitting with unusual docility to her impetuous kisses. Then sitting on a stool by his chair with her arms on his knees [illegible]

[illegible] hard he said. "You must come in touch with her and see if there's anything we can do. I wouldn't mind lending him [illegible] I [illegible] able to get a position of some kind, but it's not like trying to be mighty hard."

"Oh, Warren—Warren!" Helen threw her arms about him. "Let's be so thankful that you're not in anybody's employ! Never realized before what it meant to have a business of your own. Oh, dear, just think how terrible it would be if I should always be fearing that you might lose your position!"

"Huh, you needn't ever be afraid of that. I'll be my own boss and have my own business if it's nothing more than a peanut stand."

Holding the Fort

RAW recruits were the men, but the sergeant-in-charge was an old campaigner, up to every single little move.

The sergeant was waiting for his commanding officer outside a comfortable and inviting hostelry, rejoicing in the name of the Old Apple Tree, and he resolved to pass the time in teaching his "rookies" outpost duty.

"You three men," he said, pointing to a sturdy trio, "will go to the east end of the street; three more of you will march to the west end; the remaining force will guard the side streets and turnings, and our captain is supposed to be the enemy."

The men displayed remarkable interest in the instructions.

"This little hotel," continued the sergeant, "represents the camp, and when you sight the enemy raise the alarm and fall back on the main body—that's myself."

"And what will you do, sergeant?" asked one of the recruits timidly.

"Me?" came the reply. "Oh, I'll go inside the fort, and there attend to supplies, ammunition, and that sort of things!"

Hard Questions

OIL, tell me, does the setting sun s'or feel a stinking pain? Why is (inform a "Puzzled One") a weathercock so vane? Do stars require a gun to shoot? What makes a bucket pail? Who writes the comet's tale?

And why are dogs so lorable, however much they whine? Pray tell me, Mr. Editor, what makes the fir tree pine?

Why is a vessel's bind part stern? Who sings an e' hen's lay? Please tell me, for I'd like to know, who wears the cloth of day?

Resinol

cured terrible humor on face

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 6, 1912. "In December 1908, my face became sore. I tried everything that was recommended, and my face got worse instead of better. I spent over $100 and got no benefit. The sores and sores were very red and the eruption had the appearance of small boils, which itched me terribly. I cannot tell you how terrible my face looked—all I can say is, it was dreadful, and I suffered beyond description. I have not gone on the street many times since 1908 without a veil, until now. Just four month's ago a friend persuaded me to give Resinol a trial. I have used three cakes of Resinol Soap and less than a jar of Resinol Ointment, and my face is perfectly free from any eruption, and my sister in no other and clean as my child's. It is about four weeks since the last pimples disappeared." (Signed) Mrs. M. J. Batstone, 4056 Viola Street.

For over eighteen years Resinol has been a doctor's prescription and hence held annually for skin troubles, pimples, burns, sores, piles, etc. Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap sold by all druggists. For sample of each, write to Dept. 19-R, Resinol Chem. Co., Baltimore, Md.

PART II. (Concluded)

AND the young Earl buried himself upon the nearer of the two detectives. He had nearly freed Anson when the mob realized what he was doing. In an instant they were about the two detectives. Despite the assistance of help given to the detectives they were hustled from the paddock, while the jockey was fairly hurled upon The Whip.

[illegible] felt the nervous horse [illegible] between his knees he was off upon the race almost automatically.

At a signal from Lord Lonsmore, who realized the necessity of haste, the starting [illegible] and they were off.

[illegible] the events of the few minutes preceding the actual race had done their work with Anson. He was alive to his finger-tips and never did his work better. The Whip, too, had profited by the long delay. Her nerves had been stretched to the breaking point, and she found the greatest relief in furious action just as her rider did.

It was with difficulty that Anson prevented his mount from taking the lead at the first moment the race began, but when they were in sight of the post he had passed all save the leader. Then, with out using spur or whip, he simply shook out his reins.

Into Her Stride

In her wonderful stride The Whip passed the leader and, half a length ahead of her, reached the post.

Into the paddock rode Anson, the victor, on The Whip. The jockey's face was white and he was trembling violently. The race had told far more on him than on the splendid Whip, whose respiration was still even and regular, though, of course, considerably quickened.

The centre of a cheering knot, Lady Diana and Branscaster pressed toward The Whip, their arms around one another and their dignity as peer and marquis' heir completely gone for the moment. Somehow the story of their romances and of what they had at stake on the race had got about, and the ever sentimental English were ready to weep or laugh with them—or do both in turn.

The two detectives met Lord Beverley near The Whip. The one in authority had an open telegram in his hand. His whole demeanor showed that there was no intention upon his part now of arresting the jockey.

A Quick Recital

"My lord," he said very humbly to Beverley. "We've just had a wire from Scotland Yard. The warrant on your application has been issued."

Beverley turned sternly upon his cousin, Captain Sartoris, and Mrs. D'Aquila where they stood in a corner of the paddock.

"Then don't let them slip away," he said. "Arrest them at once."

The detectives seized Sartoris and Mrs. D'Aquila and moved out of the paddock.

Then unmindful of all the crowd, Branscaster again put his arms about Lady Diana and she about him.

"Now what's this?" demanded the Marquis of Beverley.

Lady Diana raised her blue eyes to her grandfather.

"Well, I'll tell you all about it," she said, beginning a quick recital. "Once there was a fine young man who was foolishly called by his people, who didn't know him, the Wicked Earl, but" —

TO-DAY'S STOCK MARKETS AND ALL THE LATEST FINANCIAL NEWS

Stock prices ruled irregular when stock markets opened, but in Boston at the end of the first hour most active coppers were higher. Granby had advanced 1¼. Outside of that class of issues American Agricultural was weak, selling 2% lower.

In New York at the end of that period Amalgamated, Steel, American Smelting, St. Paul and Reading were all fractionally higher.

"An increase of 11.69 per cent in net sales of gas and electricity was made by the Massachusetts Lighting Companies in December, 1912, over December, 1911. The figures for December and for the six months ending December 31 are as follows:

	1912	1911	Increase	P. Cent
December..	$99,247.29	$88,872.54	$10,374.75	11.69
Six months	587,255.79	541,381.04	45,874.75	8.47

The Lazard Freres today engaged $1,000,000 more in gold for exportation to Paris. This brings the total of the present movement to Europe up to $7,000,000.

The Bank of Germany reports a net cash on hand increased 94,526,000 marks.

Copper exports for the week ending yesterday amounted to 8,914 tons, an increase of 5,008.

Early Trading in New York.

There was more interest to speculation in the New York market when it opened and Amalgamated made a gain of 1¼ during the first half hour. This was the best record attained by any issue during that period. Coppers were stronger as a group. American Smelting opened ¼ lower, but recovered and was soon selling half a point above yesterday's closing figure. Utah Copper gained ¾.

Canadian Pacific followed the lead of the London market where it was weak on profit taking and declined four point here. St. Paul was half off, but an absence of selling caused it to recover its loss. There was considerable activity in Steel common. This issue after opening unchanged had ¼ but soon recovered and advanced ⅜, over last night's closing. Union Pacific also recovered, after being ¼ lower, and at the end of half an hour's trading was ⅛ above the opening price. American Telephone and Telegraph began ¼ lower, but made up its loss.

The list was unsettled. Among the gains were California Petroleum ¾, Lehigh Valley ⅜, Reading ⅝, Third Avenue fraction ⅜ and United States Rubber ¾. Southern Pacific began ⅜ off, but recovered. Mexican Petroleum, Missouri Pacific & Republic Iron and Steel, Consolidated Gas and Westinghouse were unchanged on first sales.

The oils was steady.

American in London were slightly above American parity but lacked snap.

Copper Metal Sales and Prices.

The London copper warrants market was easier at the opening, spot being off 2s. 6d., and futures 5s. 6d. lower.

It is said that American consumers of copper came into the market was in quiries yesterday and bong-- some sales. Transactions for the day are estimated by "competent authorities" to have totaled 3,000,000 pounds. Most buying is said to have been on European account. European dealers and manufacturers were buying yesterday, but it is question as to how great were their purchases.

Cablegrams from London read: "Dealers here all agree that reports of big copper sales are exaggerated. The American Smelting & Refining Company is believed to have sold a moderate lot, say 1,000 or 2,000 tons to Germany at 17¢ (16⅝ cents).

"Other producers here are now offering at 17¢ 10s. (16.60 cents). Buyers shy."

"A big German consumer is offered electrolytic copper at 153 marks, or 17⅝ 15s. (16.4 cents), apparently from first hands."

The Calaveras Copper Company is ready to begin production, having built a 300-ton mill and 150-ton smelter and expended about $100,000 in construction work within three years. The present equipment is believed by General Manager Treiss to be capable of an output of 10,000,000 pounds a year.

Financial News in Brief.

It is estimated that the net profits of Massachusetts Consolidated are now between $5,000 and $6,000 a month.

As compared with 1911 the surplus of the Nanmkeag Steam Cotton Co. increased about $56,000 for 1912.

The net earnings of Armour & Co. for the fiscal year ending with November 1, 1912, equal about 6 per cent of the capital invested. The increase was $3,191,593. A dividend of 10 per cent was paid on Wednesday.

The Singer Manufacturing Company, which produces more than 80 per cent of the world's supply of sewing machines, has increased its annual dividend rate from 12 to 16 per cent, on a capital of $60,000,000. In 1912 the company's sales aggregated around $10,000,000.

Kuroda Hikoichi, the New York manager of Mitsui & Co. of Tokio, Japan, has applied for membership in the New York Cotton Exchange. If elected he will make the second Japanese member.

Lawrence Minot of Boston and Morton F. Plant of New London have succeeded William McCullough Miller and Augustus Say as directors of the New Haven Road.

The Coffee Trust has bowed to the United States government. It has sold 67,500,000 worth of "colorized" coffee before.

President Charles M. Schwab intends to have a big fleet of steamships running through the Panama Canal to the ports on which the Bethlehem Steel Corporation will mine at its new property in Chile. Not less than ten vessels will be built at once and they will be from 15,000 to 20,000 tons each in freight capacity. "We hope," said Mr. Schwab, "that we will be the first steamers to use the canal."

PIGEON BRINGS NEWS OF A STOLEN FLOCK

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—Albert Lewis, No. 200 Prospect avenue, was awakened by a tapping on his window. He opened the window and one of his homing pigeons flew in. Pinned to the bird's leg was a note stating that the other twenty-one pigeons were at the Fifth avenue police station. Lewis rushed to the station house and claimed them. The birds had been taken by boys.

CHANGE SEAT $51,000, LOWEST SINCE 1908

NEW YORK, Jan. 17.—The sale of a Stock Exchange seat has been made at $51,000, which is the lowest price recorded since 1908. The last previous sale was at $53,500. The price had dropped from $55,000, paid several weeks ago. In the last of November the price of a seat was $63,000. The last seat posted for transfer was that of Drayton Burrill to Arthur M. Peck.

PLANS TO FERRY TRAINS TO CUBA

HAVANA, Jan. 17.—Robert Orr, general manager of the United Railways of Havana, has gone to St. Augustine, Fla., for the purpose of conferring with Henry Flagler regarding the installation of ferrier ferries between Key West and Havana. The object in view is the transportation of entire trains on the ferries.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is 300,000 more than its next highest competitor and 100,000 more than all the other evening papers of Boston combined.

Phone Service from Coast to Coast to Cost $2,000,000

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 17.—"Hello John, dear. That you?"

"Yes, love. How's things out in Frisco?"

"Fine, sweet! How's Old New York?"

"Fully. I'm going to send for you in a week."

"Oh goodness!"

"Never mind that dear, its costing us $18 per minute. Good-bye."

The above conversation will be possible around the last of 1915, according to A. C. Kingsbury, vice-president in charge of long distance telephones.

Sweethearts and swains, husbands and wives and business men can talk between San Francisco and New York over the telephone.

According to Kingsbury, the direct wire will cost nearly $2,000,000 and the toll will be about $18 per minute. "It is our plan," said Kingsbury, "to have one wire run by way of Cheyenne west along the route of the old Central Pacific, and another one east of Salt Lake to San Francisco by way of Los Angeles, taking the route of Salt Lake and San Pedro.

TRAIN KILLS TWO BOYS AT UXBRIDGE

UXBRIDGE, Jan. 17.—Stepping from behind a freight train which had just passed, Edmund Hamblett, twelve years, and Asa Raitte, thirteen, walked into a passenger train on another track of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad and were killed. A younger brother jagged behind and escaped.

FRANCE VIEWS WILSON'S COURSE WITH CONCERN

By LOUIS AUBERT,
Paris Financial Correspondent of Hearst Newspapers.

PARIS, Jan. 17.—We are watching with growing concern the antics of Woodrow Wilson. If they should start a panic in the American market what would be the outcome, the "globlet?"

The disturbance in the copper market is also viewed with suspicion. If this continues, it is to be feared that the business revival here will see the American market left severely alone by French investors.

A regular debauch of new government loans ranging from 4½ to 5½ per cent will be offered soon after the conclusion of Balkan peace. The public is waiting for them.

Money is still plentiful here, but investors expect a higher rate than 3½ per cent—witness the reception of the Credit Foncier issue.

Previous issues have been over-subscribed as much as ten times. The latest issue was subscribed to the extent of only two and a quarter times the amount of the offering.

Business has been dull all the week because of the presidential election and stagnation of peace negotiations. Nothing standing the desperate attempts at closure-assassination from those politicians who think the safest power would be "Mr. Log." we all hope that Premier Poincaré will be victorious today.

The Most Entertaining Reading Offered You for Sunday

FIVE Great Short Stories:

A CASE OF BILL POSTING—By Hamlin Garland
A story of the wild and wooly West with thrills galore, not unmixed with humor.

MISS MODERNITY—By Virginia Woodward Cloud
A most absorbing recital of high society life and some most interesting situations.

KITTY DAWNE—By Lewis Allen
Everybody who reads the American's Magazine is familiar with Miss Kitty's achievements. THIS time she "Cures a Fakir."

POIPLE IS POIPLE—By Newman Harris
Mr. Harris has evolved some most attractively interesting characters with just enough Hebrewism in the story to make it entertaining.

HER IMPOSSIBLE HUSBAND—By F. Harris Deans
And after you read What Happened to Father-in-Law you'll perhaps agree with the name of the story.

Two Greatest Serial Stories of the Year

The most absorbing chapters of "GUINEVERE'S LOVER"—By Elinor Glyn, and "THE CRYSTAL STOPPER"—By Maurice LeBlanc, are just being reached in these two great stories.

Italians, Germans and Other Fellow Citizens Should Be Proud to Keep Their Original Names. They Should Especially Teach Their Children to Speak the Father Language.

In the last column of this page you will find an article by Ella Wheeler Wilcox, brilliant and beautiful, as usual. It includes a letter from an Italian lady, and a poem in Italian from another Italian lady.

Mothers and fathers able to speak a foreign language SHOULD TEACH THAT LANGUAGE TO THEIR CHILDREN IN INFANCY. And citizens of foreign birth should not change and mutilate foreign names to make them sound American.

We know an able citizen whose name is Michelangelo Rofrano.

He is a statesman, a lawyer and a builder.

Yet he allows himself to be called "Mike" Rofrano.

Could there be anything worse than shortening Michelangelo to Mike?

If you have a good foreign name keep it and be proud of it, and remember that it represents in its spelling, its sound and its sentiment ancestors of many years, and thoughts and experiences of many centuries.

If you speak a foreign language, Italian, Spanish, German, Polish or any other, TEACH THAT LANGUAGE TO YOUR CHILDREN.

The public schools will teach them the English language. You can teach them in infancy, without effort, the language that you learned as a child, AND ONE FOREIGN LANGUAGE IS A GREAT ASSET IN A CHILD'S EDUCATION.

Every Italian or other foreign born father and mother should remember that the parents of rich children always engage nurses or governesses to teach at least one foreign language to their children.

You have the power to teach your child a second language easily. Do not neglect the opportunity, or deprive the child of that opportunity.

To be able to read, speak and understand a second language is to have access to a whole world of thought and emotion which is closed to others, and to have a mind in better order, better fed.

Pardon for C. F. King Would Show Mercy Where Demanded

The physical condition of Cardenio F. King seems to warrant the Executive Council in setting free this man, who has not only served four years in prison, but has given the fullest evidence of his desire to pay his debt to society.

The AMERICAN has never opposed the granting of clemency to those who have paid to the State and to society the penance that is their due for moral and illegal offences. Those who are acting in King's behalf are not only interested persons, but disinterested ones as well. A hasty glance at the photographs showing King's physical condition leaves no possible ground for not favoring his speedy liberation.

To "Have a Right" to Do a Thing---

Does Not Mean That You MAY Do the Thing. Ask the Women, or the Average Small Citizen.

Mr. A. K. Cross, of the Boston Art Club, writes this letter:

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—The high cost of living would be specially solved if every city and large town maintained its own cold storage plant and filled it with butter, eggs, etc., in their season, and sold the same at a reasonable figure, instead of at the unreasonable figures demanded by private owners. The city has as much right to do this as to supply water and light. Yours truly, A. K. CROSS.

It is perhaps true, as Mr. Cross says, that the city has "a right" to provide cold storage plants, to put in eggs and butter when they are cheap—and let the people have them at a reasonable price when they become dear.

Of course, every city has "a right" to do ANYTHING that a majority of its citizens want.

But merely having "a right" to do a thing in this country does not mean that you CAN do it.

Women, as every man of sense knows, "have a right" to vote. But they are not permitted to vote.

And the individual, for instance, who owns or is slowly buying a little house, in which to keep his family and raise children for the benefit of the State, "has a right" to keep that house free from taxation. But he does NOT keep it free from taxation.

On the contrary, the habit is to tax him about ninety per cent. of the actual value of his little house, and to tax the big house that cost a million on the hill near him about twenty per cent. of its value.

Having "a right" doesn't help him much.

The people in the cities, and the majority of all citizens, have many rights. But transforming those rights into REALITIES is a slow process—about as slow as transforming the iron ore in the hills into buildings and the sand on the shore into window glass to light those buildings.

Little by little "the rights" are conquered, the buildings are built, life is made better.

Doubtless in time human beings will even have brains enough to reduce the cost of living by combining for their own advantage, instead of having capital combined for their disadvantage.

But that is some distance off.

The Magic Carpet

By WINSOR M'CAY

The old Arabs had a legend of a magic carpet which, at a wish, would whisk its owner wherever he desired. If the magic carpet came sailing over an American town or countryside today, its astonished passengers would see modern mechanical magic at work on every road. Every man with a motor car has a magic carpet of his own and has only to throw in the clutch to fly where he wishes.

Shall We Burn South Polar Coal When Industrial Progress Exhausts Present Supply?

Capt. Roald Amundsen Says Antarctic Continent Has Greatest Coal Deposits on Earth, but to Get at Them Is an Undertaking Seemingly Surpassing Human Ability

By GARRETT P. SERVISS

CAPTAIN ROALD AMUNDSEN asserts that the Antarctic Continent contains the greatest coal deposits known on earth. With that in mind, consider this other fact:

For many years scientific men have been repeating the warning that modern industrial progress is making so great an inroad upon the coal mines that within a period of two or three centuries there will not be enough coal left to supply more than a small fraction of the demand.

Putting those two statements together, and supposing them both to be accurate, it is evident that our not very remote descendants will have to do one of two things: Either they must discover some other source of heat and power than coal, or they must conquer the Antarctic Continent and make its vast stores of coal available for their use.

Now, on the face of things, it would appear that the industrial conquest of that continent would be an undertaking surpassing human ability. It lies almost wholly within the Antarctic circle, where, for six months at a stretch, unending night prevails; it is entirely surrounded by vast fields of floating ice, and edged with gigantic ice barriers which rise into precipices hundreds of feet in height; it swells up from its frozen sea borders like a vast dome, having the loftiest mean elevation of any land on the globe, and buried under a deposit of ice thousands of feet in depth. Even to reach its borders men must take their lives in their hands; and what it means to march over its wind-swept surface, intersected with crevasses, interrupted by mountain chains, and subjected (on account of the elevation) to a very low temperature even during the six months that the sun shines continually upon its blinding landscapes, the stories of the experience of Captain Amundsen and Lieutenant Shackleton sufficiently indicate.

But the coal deposits that have been found in the Antarctic Continent lie near its borders, where the rock can, in spots, be uncovered. Danger must be faced and hardship encountered in order merely to reach them; to work them amid the conditions there prevailing, and to carry their products over the stormy and ice-choked sea which separates them from the inhabited lands of the globe, would demand the exercise of a degree of skill, courage and endurance of the very highest kind. Nobody has yet asserted that it can be done; some regard it as impossible; but Captain Amundsen, inspired by that unconquerable resolution which carried him to the Pole, says that he "hopes" that these incalculable riches of the great southern continent may eventually be rendered available for the uses of mankind. It is only a hope; but many of our greatest achievements have begun with nothing better to rest upon.

There is another aspect of this question which may have some bearing upon the future availability of the treasures of the Antarctic, though not within any measurable distance of time. How and when were the coal beds deposited around the South Pole?

Captain Amundsen expresses the opinion that they were formed untold thousands of years ago (and one should rather say millions of years), when a tropical climate prevailed in the far south. At first glance this would seem to be evident, for we know that coal is formed from vegetation, and there is now no vegetation on the Antarctic Continent. But recent investigation shows that the climate need not have been tropical, or even "sub-tropical," in order that coal-producing plants might flourish in those latitudes. It has been proved that coal is even now in process of formation in Alaska and Labrador, and it has also been shown that many of the carboniferous plants—i. e., those from which our coal was formed—indicate, by their structure, that they were adapted to live in a cold rather than a tropical climate.

This being so, it is clear that the coal of the Antarctic Continent may have been formed from plants which grew under conditions of climate not very different from those that now prevail in Alaska. Anyhow, it absolves us from the necessity of assuming that the South Pole once glowed with tropical heat, although we are still forced to believe that the temperature, at least around the borders of the Antarctic Continent, was formerly much higher than it is at present. But the change may be assumed to have been far less than would be implied by the existence of a truly tropical climate.

Then, the story of the rocks tells us that in the past changes of climate have occurred in recurring periods, or cycles. The precise causes of these are not known, but we seem to be warranted in supposing that similar changes may occur in the future. It is within the range of possibility, then, that at some time—no doubt immensely remote—the ice barriers of the Antarctic Continent may be so far removed by change of climate that vegetation can again flourish on its borders, and in that case it might become easy to delve among its ancient riches.

But, long before that time, mankind will probably have passed beyond the coal age, and, if our more immediate descendants are forced to avail themselves of Antarctic coal, they will have to depend upon themselves to get it, and not upon an alteration of climate to place it within their easy reach.

MISTAKE TO DROP LIQUID FOREIGN NAMES

ELLA WHEELER WILCOX says: It is also wrong for parents coming here from abroad to bring up children in ignorance of their mother language.

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

OUT in Madison, Ct., there is a very bright, serious-minded Italian lady named Annette Colombo.

She is devoted to her native country, and very jealous of its good reputation. But she is much inclined to take a morbid view of the ignorant ideas which many Americans (and people of other nationalities as well) hold of Italians.

Madame Colombo is well educated in her own language. She was woman grown when she came here and she now speaks and writes an excellent English, with but few minor mistakes.

She has a busy brain and is constantly thinking, but she needs to direct her thoughts in a more philosophical channel.

It troubles her greatly that the beautiful Italian names are changed so soon here in America to names which do not give an idea of the nationality of the bearer, and last May she wrote an appeal as a protest against the changing of the name of Colombo, the discoverer of America, to Columbus.

Bring Up Their Children in Ignorance of Their Native Tongue

The writer of this agrees with her that it is a mistake to change such a musical name as Giovanni to John, or Giuseppi to Joe, and to utterly drop some musical and liquid cognomen and adopt Smith, or White, or Humphrey, as several Italians have done.

But it seems to be the rule of all foreigners who come to America to live. And worse yet, they bring up their children in ignorance of the native language of the parents. Children of parents born in Germany and Italy particularly are obliged to learn those languages at school.

The fathers and mothers make a great mistake in thinking the children will be better Americans by not knowing how to speak the native tongue.

Here is Mrs. Colombo's latest grievance:

"If you can explain why, in America, as in all other nations, there are a great number of Italian-born men, women and children who, if they are quite well off, are called Americans, French, etc., but if they are poor, or good for nothing, they are Italians, so that only the very low class of Italians are now regarded as Italian. Even the great men treat us so.

"A few weeks ago the R. Thomas Gregoris wrote the eulogy of Napoleon. Instead of calling him the great Frenchman, why did he not say the great Corsican man? When he was born Corsica had surrendered to France only a few months before and the population was still recognized as Italian.

"Bonaparte, Napoleon's father, was considered by France as one of the 400, or nobility, of Corsica.

The mother of Napoleon went back from France and died in Rome. Why, why is it not a Genovese? Is it because he was a great man?

"Am I really wrong or don't you think it provoking and discouraging to be an Italian?"

The writer of the letter can find comfort in the following poem written by one of her brilliant countrywoman, Mrs. S. Poli, No. 10 Howe street, New Haven, Ct.

Sings Praises of Celebrities in Her Native Tongue

It gives in her native language a few of the wonderful Italian names of the stars which are blazing in the firmament of glory—Galileo, Columbus, Dante, Raphael, Rossini, Michael Angelo. A hundred more might easily be added.

There is no other country on earth which has given all the arts and sciences so much genius as Italy.

Every human being whose mind is developed beyond the provincial boundary knows this to be true, and the opinion of the ignorant is scarcely worth noticing.

LE GLORIE D'ITALIA.

Salve, o Italia, sorriso divino,
Di natura leggiadro giardino,
Ove il dolce tuo nome risuona;
S'ode un plauso perenne ecchegiari!

Del mondiale alterno moto,
Al mortali ancor ignoto,
Chi svelava il grand'arcano?
Galileo, un italiano!

Chi un novello continente,
Discoprìa mirabilmente,
Oltro al placido oceano;
Fu Colombo, un italiano!

Creator di dolci accenti,
Che ammirato dolle genti,
Col suo carme sovrumano;
Egli e Dante, un italiano!

Leggiadrissimo pittore,
Che al dolce parla al core,
Con la magica sua mano,
Raffaello, un italiano!

Chi signor dell'armonia,
Grando sempre al par di pria,
Uguaglia si cercai invano?
E Rossini, un italiano!

Nobilissimo scultore,
Architetto e al par pittore,
Chi e in ogni arte ognor sovrano?
Michelangelo, un italiano!

Piu' moderno sorge autore,
Dallo onde protettore,
Dai naufragi il mondo umano,
E Marconi, un italiano!

This is quite answer enough to the closing question in the letter of Annette Colombo, whether or not it is "provoking and discouraging to be an Italian."

To have been born in a land which produced such men and women as are a benefit and a glory to the human race is surely anything but "provoking and discouraging."

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

BRITAIN AND THE CANAL

Editor Boston AMERICAN:

Dear Sir—Some time ago I had the pleasure of reading an article written by Mr. Hearst, for the benefit of the English press with regard to the Panama Canal. And now, after a seeming lull, the American and British newspapers have taken up the question once more with the formal protest of Great Britain is before the Senate.

In my estimation, England's motive for protest is one of pure selfishness. Though she may preach "violation of treaties" and "going back on one's word," I think the treaty has but little to do with her real motive, and serves as a cloak for her greed. It seems to me that the waspishness and vindictive criticism of the British press for America and all her vital interests in general has at last reached a point where endurance is fast approaching a state of just exasperation. Not only in the Canal question, but in other and more petty details has she thrust a ridiculing tongue at both sister nations, in tones where her bitter animosity is but thinly disguised.

The English nation, I am sorry to say, has throughout her history been a self-centred one. And in this question of canal tolls, it is too plainly evident that "England is working for England." Now let us take this little view and compare it with the vital question at hand; for instance, if Great Britain should buy a large portion of territory which would yield when ploughed and planted, a sufficient relay of produce to enable even foreign nations a share of the abundant bounty, would she have any exclusive rights to her own property? Or, would she calmly stand aside and permit those foreign powers to enter and seize full possession of the harvest she had sown, and for which she was responsible? Meanwhile, they arrogating to themselves dictatorship and going so far as to command that she as well as they pay for the produce derived through her own industry and skill!

I can scarcely picture this as England's attitude in such an affair, especially if the dictating Power happened to be the United States. It is a preposterous thing to think that when a country buys and hires her own laborers to dig and build her canal, fortify it, etc., that after going to such an expense to complete a grand piece of work that is going to help to place more dollars in the pockets of the foreign nations, it cannot as a recompense allow her own ships free toll. It is my sincere hope that when the Senate sends Great Britain her formal reply, it will be in a manner somewhat as Senator Cullom made to the House.

Mr. Hearst is to be commended for his just attitude in the case displayed in his editorial to the British press, and is heartily thanked by all true Americans who recognize the value of his great newspapers.
